C117 Is Lost In Storm Off Amalfi Coast

Italians Join Search For Dozen U.S. Servicemen

BULLETIN

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—An Italian intercoastal vessel early Saturday rescued all eight men from a twin-engine U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane that fell into heavy seas during a thunder storm off the Amalfi coast Friday night.

The Navy earlier had said 12 men were aboard but later revised this to eight.

The eight were picked up from a life raft launched from the C117 Dakota after it ditched.

SALERNO, Italy (AP)—A U.S. Navy twin-engine reconnaissance plane went down in heaving seas during a thunderstorm off the Amalfi coast Friday night with 12 men aboard.

A wide air and sea search began. Visibility was poor and rain was falling.

An Italian military plane in the search radioed that it had spotted a flare in the dark near an islet a few miles off the Salerno peninsula.

Rescue vessels headed for the spot.

The NATO command at Naples said the C117 aircraft had left Naples' Capodichino Airport for Catania, Sicily, with a crew of four and eight passengers, all U.S. servicemen.

A base spokesman said radio contact with the tower had been lost as a severe thunderstorm hit the coastal area. The plane went down 11 miles from the coast between Salerno and the Isle of Capri.

The C117 had reported to the Capodichino control tower, just before radio contact was lost, that it was in difficulty.

The NATO spokesman said police at Positano, west on the Salerno peninsula, gave the first word of the downed plane when they saw flares burning at a great distance.

The C117, the new joint designation for what the Army used to call the C47, has the basic configuration of the old DC3 aircraft.

The Navy sent long-range reconnaissance planes to search the crash area. Helicopters stood by to pick up any survivors.

40 Countries Sign Nuclear Test Ban Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About one-third of the nations of the world Friday had their signatures on a nuclear test ban treaty that raises hopes for reduction of cold war tensions and the danger of nuclear war.

"It would be a tragedy if the hopes raised by this beginning were destroyed by evasions of the treaty," Ambassador Miguel Augustus Ribeiro of Ghana said as he signed a copy of the treaty in Washington.

Nearly 40 countries signed here Thursday and Friday. Most of them also signed other copies of the original American-British-Russian agreement in similar ceremonies in London and Moscow.

More than 60 nations have indicated they will sign here. Iceland is expected to lead off another round of signings Monday.

Kefauver Suffers Mild Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said Friday he has suffered a mild heart attack and is in the U.S. Naval Hospital, in nearby Bethesda, Md.

A statement by Kefauver's administrative assistant said "doctors have ordered complete rest for at least three weeks."

Khrushchev Defeats Rusk At Badminton

GAGRA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Premier Khrushchev and U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk conferred in shirtsleeves on cold war issues for 2½ hours Friday, then competed in a fast game of badminton.

Khrushchev, a well-upholstered 69, claimed victory over Rusk, 54.

"Practice," he said briefly when Rusk told him "you play well."

After Friday's talk, contents kept secret, Rusk said they reached no conclusion, but the talks would continue through normal diplomatic channels.

The two men met in a breeze-swept veranda overlooking the Black Sea. For the first time ever, Western newsmen were permitted to enter Khrushchev's summer mansion.

With Rusk were Llewellyn Thompson, his top advisor on Soviet affairs; Ass. Secretary of State Richard Davis; and Foy Kohler, American ambassador to the Soviet Union.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Soviet Ambassador to Washington Anayoly Dobrynin flanked Khrushchev at the conference table.

Gagra is perched on a cliff at the border of the Soviet Republic of Georgia and the Russian Federated Republic.

Gromyko jokingly told the premier that Rusk "is trying to find out all about Georgia because he's from the American state of Georgia."

"I'm trying to find out everything," replied Rusk, whose task Friday was to sound Khrushchev out on what other agreements might be possible following the signing of a limited nuclear test ban treaty in Moscow last Monday.

It was Khrushchev who suggested the badminton game. The official news agency Tass made much of it.

Tass said Rusk started fast, but Khrushchev overhauled him with well-placed birds until Rusk conceded: "I am going to lose."

Rusk later flew back to Moscow along with his aides and Gromyko.

Congolese Army To Hit Rebels

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — The national Congolese army is preparing to attack the Katangese rebel stronghold of Kasenga with United Nations air support in the next three days, reliable sources in Elisabethville said Friday.

It is believed about 3,000 Katangese soldiers, the remnants of Moise Tshombe's outlawed secessionist army, are massing in the Kasenga area and will defend it against the Congolese army attack.

Reliable sources say the government plans to send 2,000 men, in two battalions, by road to Kasenga Sunday or Monday.

Negotiations are believed continuing between the central government authorities in Elisabethville and the United Nations on a plan for the U.N. to provide the attack with air support.

World-Wide Sympathy Is Being Shown

Death Attracts Attention All Around Globe

By The Associated Press

From around the world Friday came expressions of sympathy assuring President and Mrs. Kennedy that others share their grief at the death of their new son, Patrick Bouvier.

The infant, the first family's third child, was born prematurely on Wednesday and died early Friday morning, ending more than 39 hours of anxious watchfulness which millions of people also had shared with the chief executive and his wife, Jacqueline.

From the Vatican, Pope Paul VI sent a private telegram of condolence to the President and Mrs. Kennedy.

Richard Cardinal Cushing, Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston who will officiate at private funeral services for the baby on Saturday, said: "It will be a special comfort to the President and his wife that everything possible was done to save the life of the infant. They will know that the baby now lives in the nursery of the kingdom of heaven."

When the Senate convened in Washington at noon, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said: 'I know I speak for the Senate, the Congress and the people of the nation and the world in expressing a deep sense of sadness at the untimely passing of Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, son of the President.

The House of Representatives was not in session.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York sent a message of condolence. As was true in many other cases, it was not made public because of its personal nature.

Indiana's Gov. Matthew E. Welsh ordered flags at the statehouse in Indianapolis flown at half staff. He also sent a telegram saying: "Mrs. Welsh and I extend to you our sincere condolences on the death of your son. I am sure all the people of Indiana join with us in this expression of sympathy."

From Helsinki, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and his wife, Lady Dorothy Macmillan, sent a private expression of sympathy.

France's President Charles de Gaulle and Madame de Gaulle sent a message of condolence.

The news took first place in European newspapers. In London it took precendence over Britain's great train robbery. The Evening News had a black headline across page one—"Jackie's Baby Dies."

Senate Saves Moon-Man In Close Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate narrowly defeated Friday a move to slow down the race for the moon and accepted a compromise plan for the new communications satellite corporation to pay for some of its birth pangs.

Then the Senate passed by voice vote a new $5.5-billion space program, with most of the money earmarked for the plan to put a man on the moon by 1970. A conference committee will try to adjust differences between the bill and a House version which was more than $300 million lower.

President Kennedy had asked about $200 million more than the $5,511,520,400 which the Senate version of the bill would authorize for the current fiscal year which began July 1.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., chairman of the Senate Space Committee, blunted a sharp attack upon a $44-million item for communications research by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

By a 60-11 vote the Senate accepted a substitute amendment by Anderson which would require the new communications satellite corporation to repay NASA for any "exclusive benefits" it received from the government agency's research.

Train Robbery Loot Is Over $7 Million

Offered Rewards Total $728,000

LONDON (AP) — British accountants totaled losses of more than $7 million Friday in the world's greatest train robbery. Rewards for arrest and conviction of the robbers soared to $728,000.

Detectives swarmed through race track crowds and shady drinking spots, looking for a splurge of underworld spending.

The bandits made off with loot valued at $7,070,280. Most of it was in dog-eared but easily spendable paper currency that banks were shipping to London for repulping.

The gang of 15 or more men halted and robbed the Glasgow-London mail train before dawn Thursday at a lonely spot 40 miles northwest of London.

Loss Is Insured

The rewards of $728,000—put up by banks and others—totaled $28,000 more than the actual loot from Britain's previous record mail robbery, in 1952.

News of the losses touched off the selling of bank shares on the London Stock Exchange.

A spokesman for the banks quickly sought to head off public concern about the banks' ability to sustain such a blow.

"What we lost is negligible, and we really mean negligible," he said.

In any event, insurance companies will carry much of the loss.

Scotland Yard Busy

Scotland Yard mobilized a great part of Britain's law enforcement machinery in the hunt for the masked bandits who stopped the train by rigging with the block signal, uncoupled the engine and first two coaches and carried out their looting in 15 minutes.

Detectives assumed that they had a finger man somewhere inside Britain's postal system, since the gang obviously possessed exact knowledge of the train's cargo and operations. The train, with 75 post office workers aboard, carried only mail.

A check was made of airfields on the chance that the bandits flew the loot to the Continent in hired planes. Interpol, the international police organization, kept an eye on fences and streets corner money changers in Europe's capitals.

Detective Supt. Gerald McArthur of Scotland Yard was told that a red plane landed and took off from a field near Cheddington, not far from the scene of the holdup.

Hope For Break

But police said the best hope of locating the gang would come either when the thieves fell out or one of them began to spend money wildly.

McArthur denied reports that Scotland Yard received a tip some time ago that a big train robbery was being planned by the underworld.

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of clues.

The loot was contained in 110 mail bags. McArthur said one large truck might have been able to carry it all away.

Day Leaves Public Office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — J. Edward Day left the office of postmaster general Friday with a prediction that the 1964 Republican nominee will be Richard M. Nixon.

Day, 49, a former Los Angeles insurance executive, joined President Kennedy's Cabinet two years ago. He resigned the post, however, and plans to be an attorney in Washington, D.C.

As he departed from office he let a Los Angeles audience in on some of his political views, including the opinion that Nixon, defeated for the California governorship in 1962, will run for the presidency again. Nixon is now practicing law in New York.

"The fact that Mr. Nixon has moved to New York doesn't alter my prediction one bit," Day told the Los Angeles Rotary Club.

In Washington, Day will head the capital office of a Chicago law firm. He said in an interview earlier that he regretted leaving the Cabinet.

"I'd love to stay in public life," he said, "but I've run out of gas financially."

Victims Of Chlorine Gas Treated

Attendants at Frankford Hospital in northeast Philadelphia, Pa., are shown treating victims of chlorine gas that escaped from a railroad car on a siding. Police said more than 200 persons were treated in area hospitals. A tank car near a chemical tank sprung a leak and spewed the deadly gas over a wide area. The leak was closed by a team of masked firemen. (AP Photofax).

Arlene Rakes Bermuda With Light Damage

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Arlene sped northeast in the Atlantic Friday after raking Bermuda with winds up to 80 miles an hour.

Because of its forward speed, the season's first hurricane lashed the island chain 670 miles southeast of New York only briefly and gales in the area ended during the afternoon. Damage was negligible.

The storm was moving at about 25 miles per hour and heading away from any land area. Gales extend outward 150 miles in all directions from the center, the Weather Bureau said.

Arlene was expected to continue on a general northeasterly course near 25 miles per hour for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Astronauts End Desert Training

RENO, Nev. (AP) — America's nine new astronauts returned Friday from the Nevada desert, where it was hotter than inside a space capsule burning through the atmosphere on re-entry.

After a press conference they went to lunch — their first real meal in three days.

They were training for a possible desert landing after a space flight.

On the Nevada desert they encountered a sand blizzard, 135-degree sand-level temperatures and pounding rain. They also ran across rattlesnakes and scorpions.

There was little specific discussion of what happened at the desert training site — a 40-minute helicopter ride from Stead Air Force Base, which is eight miles north of Reno.

India Protests

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India protested to Peking Friday that two Communist Chinese warplanes had violated Indian air space.

A Foreign Office spokesman said a Chinese plane penetrated 48 miles inside Indian territory in Uttar Pradesh state on Aug. 1. A smiliar intrusion occurred the day before, the spokesman said.

Border tension between Indian and China had been high since the invasion by Chinese troops last autumn.

CHEERLEADER SLAIN — Patricia Ann Rebholz, 15, cheerleader at Cincinnati's suburban Green Hills High School, was found slain Friday in a grass lot near her home. She had been missing for eight hours after leaving a teen-age dance near her residence. Her father, Mel Rebholz Sr., reported her missing about 1 a.m. and the body was found around daybreak. She had been beaten about the head. (AP Photofax)

Ambassador's Jeep Kills Boy

DON TIN, South Viet Nam (AP)—Tragedy stalked ceremonies Friday which had been intended to send retiring U.S. Ambassador Frederick E. Nolting home amid a warm glow of friendship.

Nolting arrived from Saigon to find one of the jeeps in his official motorcade had run over and killed a 3-year-old boy and one of the three helicopters in his security escort had accidently fired off a burst, killing a 6-year-old boy and wounding five persons, including the child's mother.

The American crew chief responsible was hospitalized for shock.

A U.S. spokesman said the helicopter shooting occurred when the crew chief was thrown off balance during a turn and the cord of his microphone caught in the trigger.

Nolting is returning to the United States next week and will be replaced here by Henry Cabot Lodge, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Two Gangland Killings Mark N.Y. Mob Feud

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gangland killers using high-powered cars struck twice in the New York City area Friday as the two-month old Gallo-Profaci mob war in Brooklyn appeared to get up steam.

Turncoat mobster Joseph (Joe Bats) Cardiello was gunned down in a daylight execution on a Brooklyn street. A black automobile pulled alongside the car 54-year-old Cardiello was driving and he was cut down by a volley of slugs.

He had left the Profaci gang in 1961 and joined the Gallo mob.

Several hours later, two miles south of Port Jefferson, Long Island, 26-year-old Louis Mariani, a close friend of Larry Gallo, was shot and killed when a car carrying three or four men pulled alongside and pumped his car full of bullets.

A companion in the car, Anthony Getch of Brooklyn, was seriously injured. Two other persons in the car were uninjured.

Police said Mariani had a record of six arrests and was a known member of the Gallo gang. Getch was on parole after serving two years of a sentence for assault and robbery in 1959.

The blood feud between the Profaci and Gallo mobs erupted in June in a dispute over jukebox protection rights. The Profaci mob controlled the racket and the Gallo mob decided to take it away.

Duke Of Argyll Weds 4th Duchess

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Argyll married his fourth duchess, it was learned Friday, less than a month after shedding his third in Britain's most expensive and scandalous divorce trial.

The fourth Duchess of Argyll, like the second, is an American—Mathilda Coster Mortimer, daughter of Stanley Mortimer of Litchfield, Conn.

Mrs. Mortimer, about 40, is the daughter of the late Mrs. Martinez de Las Revas of Paris. She formerly was married to Prof. Clemens Heller of Paris University, and has three sons.

Friends said he has known Mrs. Mortimer for many years. She was educated at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., but has lived most of her life in France.

Tiny Patrick Lived Only Forty Hours

Hyaline Membrane Disease Of Lungs Cause Of Death

BOSTON (AP) — Tiny Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died Friday after only 39 hours and 12 minutes of life, and messages of sympathy poured in from all parts of the world for his parents, President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Patrick's short life was a constant battle against an ailment dreaded in premature babies. He was born by Caesarean section 5½ weeks before full term. He succumbed to hyaline membrane disease—a membrane formation in the lungs.

Doctors explained the disease left a thin membrane in the infant's lungs which prevented oxygen from reaching the blood.

The third child of the President and his wife, Jacqueline, 34, succumbed at 4:04 a.m., as a team of doctors strove to keep his faint heartbeat alive.

President Stands By

The President had been aroused from bed and stood nearby in Boston's Children's Medical Center as the infant died.

Dr. Leonard W. Cronkhite Jr., general director of the center, said: "We fired all the guns there were to fire."

In words of religious comfort, the President's close friend, Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, said: "He now lives in the nursery of the children of heaven."

Cardinal Cushing will say a private "Mass of the Angels" in his chapel at 10 a.m. Saturday. The President will fly up from Otis Air Force Base, where his wife is still hospitalized, to attend the service.

Burial will be in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

After the services the President will return to Otis. Only immediate members of the family will attend.

The President left the medical center flew down to Otis, arriving about 9:30 at the hospital.

A doctor had told the mother her youngest child had died. She received the word at 6:35 a.m., from her obstetrician, Dr. John W. Walsh. She then was given a mild sedative and slept until the President arrived.

Stays With Jackie

Kennedy spent more than two hours in his wife's suite at the base hospital.

Also on hand were the President's two brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

There he had another sad task—to tell his children, Caroline, 5½, and John Jr., 2½, that the little baby brother they were expecting won't come home.

13 To Attend Private Funeral

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Only 13 people, all close relatives, have been invited to join President Kennedy Saturday at the private funeral mass for his infant son Patrick Bouvier Kennedy.

The mass will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing in his residential chapel in Boston.

Invited to join the President are his two brothers and their wives—Atty. Gen. and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen. and Mrs. Edward M. Kennedy; his three sisters and their husbands, Eunice and Sargent Shriver, Jean and Stephen Smith; Patricia and Peter Lawford; Mrs. Kennedy's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said one or more of them will stay with Mrs. Kennedy at the Otis Air Force Base Hospital dur-

In any event, insurance companies will carry much of the loss.

Scotland Yard Busy

Scotland Yard mobilized a great part of Britain's law enforcement machinery in the hunt for the masked bandits who stopped the train by rigging with the block signal, uncoupled the engine and first two coaches and carried out their looting in 15 minutes.

Detectives assumed that they had a finger man somewhere inside Britain's postal system, since the gang obviously possessed exact knowledge of the train's cargo and operations. The train, with 75 post office workers aboard, carried only mail.

A check was made of airfields on the chance that the bandits flew the loot to the Continent in hired planes. Interpol, the international police organization, kept an eye on fences and streets corner money changers in Europe's capitals.

Detective Supt. Gerald McArthur of Scotland Yard was told that a red plane landed and took off from a field near Cheddington, not far from the scene of the holdup.

Hope For Break

But police said the best hope of locating the gang would come either when the thieves fell out or one of them began to spend money wildly.

McArthur denied reports that Scotland Yard received a tip some time ago that a big train robbery was being planned by the underworld.

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of clues.

The loot was contained in 110 mail bags. McArthur said one large truck might have been able to carry it all away.

Day Leaves Public Office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — J. Edward Day left the office of postmaster general Friday with a prediction that the 1964 Republican nominee will be Richard M. Nixon.

Day, 49, a former Los Angeles insurance executive, joined President Kennedy's Cabinet two years ago. He resigned the post, however, and plans to be an attorney in Washington, D.C.

As he departed from office he let a Los Angeles audience in on some of his political views, including the opinion that Nixon, defeated for the California governorship in 1962, will run for the presidency again. Nixon is now practicing law in New York.

"The fact that Mr. Nixon has moved to New York doesn't alter my prediction one bit," Day told the Los Angeles Rotary Club.

In Washington, Day will head the capital office of a Chicago law firm. He said in an interview earlier that he regretted leaving the Cabinet.

"I'd love to stay in public life," he said, "but I've run out of gas financially."

Victims Of Chlorine Gas Treated

Attendants at Frankford Hospital in northeast Philadelphia, Pa., are shown treating victims of chlorine gas that escaped from a railroad car on a siding. Police said more than 200 persons were treated in area hospitals. A tank car near a chemical tank sprung a leak and spewed the deadly gas over a wide area. The leak was closed by a team of masked firemen. (AP Photofax).

Arlene Rakes Bermuda With Light Damage

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Arlene sped northeast in the Atlantic Friday after raking Bermuda with winds up to 80 miles an hour.

Because of its forward speed, the season's first hurricane lashed the island chain 670 miles southeast of New York only briefly and gales in the area ended during the afternoon. Damage was negligible.

The storm was moving at about 25 miles per hour and heading away from any land area. Gales extend outward 150 miles in all directions from the center, the Weather Bureau said.

Arlene was expected to continue on a general northeasterly course near 25 miles per hour for the next 12 to 24 hours.

Astronauts End Desert Training

RENO, Nev. (AP) — America's nine new astronauts returned Friday from the Nevada desert, where it was hotter than inside a space capsule burning through the atmosphere on re-entry.

After a press conference they went to lunch — their first real meal in three days.

They were training for a possible desert landing after a space flight.

On the Nevada desert they encountered a sand blizzard, 135-degree sand-level temperatures and pounding rain. They also ran across rattlesnakes and scorpions.

There was little specific discussion of what happened at the desert training site — a 40-minute helicopter ride from Stead Air Force Base, which is eight miles north of Reno.

India Protests

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India protested to Peking Friday that two Communist Chinese warplanes had violated Indian air space.

A Foreign Office spokesman said a Chinese plane penetrated 48 miles inside Indian territory in Uttar Pradesh state on Aug. 1. A smiliar intrusion occurred the day before, the spokesman said.

Border tension between Indian and China had been high since the invasion by Chinese troops last autumn.

CHEERLEADER SLAIN — Patricia Ann Rebholz, 15, cheerleader at Cincinnati's suburban Green Hills High School, was found slain Friday in a grass lot near her home. She had been missing for eight hours after leaving a teen-age dance near her residence. Her father, Mel Rebholz Sr., reported her missing about 1 a.m. and the body was found around daybreak. She had been beaten about the head. (AP Photofax)

Ambassador's Jeep Kills Boy

DON TIN, South Viet Nam (AP)—Tragedy stalked ceremonies Friday which had been intended to send retiring U.S. Ambassador Frederick E. Nolting home amid a warm glow of friendship.

Nolting arrived from Saigon to find one of the jeeps in his official motorcade had run over and killed a 3-year-old boy and one of the three helicopters in his security escort had accidently fired off a burst, killing a 6-year-old boy and wounding five persons, including the child's mother.

The American crew chief responsible was hospitalized for shock.

A U.S. spokesman said the helicopter shooting occurred when the crew chief was thrown off balance during a turn and the cord of his microphone caught in the trigger.

Nolting is returning to the United States next week and will be replaced here by Henry Cabot Lodge, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Two Gangland Killings Mark N.Y. Mob Feud

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gangland killers using high-powered cars struck twice in the New York City area Friday as the two-month old Gallo-Profaci mob war in Brooklyn appeared to get up steam.

Turncoat mobster Joseph (Joe Bats) Cardiello was gunned down in a daylight execution on a Brooklyn street. A black automobile pulled alongside the car 54-year-old Cardiello was driving and he was cut down by a volley of slugs.

He had left the Profaci gang in 1961 and joined the Gallo mob.

Several hours later, two miles south of Port Jefferson, Long Island, 26-year-old Louis Mariani, a close friend of Larry Gallo, was shot and killed when a car carrying three or four men pulled alongside and pumped his car full of bullets.

A companion in the car, Anthony Getch of Brooklyn, was seriously injured. Two other persons in the car were uninjured.

Police said Mariani had a record of six arrests and was a known member of the Gallo gang. Getch was on parole after serving two years of a sentence for assault and robbery in 1959.

The blood feud between the Profaci and Gallo mobs erupted in June in a dispute over jukebox protection rights. The Profaci mob controlled the racket and the Gallo mob decided to take it away.

Duke Of Argyll Weds 4th Duchess

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Argyll married his fourth duchess, it was learned Friday, less than a month after shedding his third in Britain's most expensive and scandalous divorce trial.

The fourth Duchess of Argyll, like the second, is an American—Mathilda Coster Mortimer, daughter of Stanley Mortimer of Litchfield, Conn.

Mrs. Mortimer, about 40, is the daughter of the late Mrs. Martinez de Las Revas of Paris. She formerly was married to Prof. Clemens Heller of Paris University, and has three sons.

Friends said he has known Mrs. Mortimer for many years. She was educated at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass., but has lived most of her life in France.

Tiny Patrick Lived Only Forty Hours

Hyaline Membrane Disease Of Lungs Cause Of Death

BOSTON (AP) — Tiny Patrick Bouvier Kennedy died Friday after only 39 hours and 12 minutes of life, and messages of sympathy poured in from all parts of the world for his parents, President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Patrick's short life was a constant battle against an ailment dreaded in premature babies. He was born by Caesarean section 5½ weeks before full term. He succumbed to hyaline membrane disease—a membrane formation in the lungs.

Doctors explained the disease left a thin membrane in the infant's lungs which prevented oxygen from reaching the blood.

The third child of the President and his wife, Jacqueline, 34, succumbed at 4:04 a.m., as a team of doctors strove to keep his faint heartbeat alive.

President Stands By

The President had been aroused from bed and stood nearby in Boston's Children's Medical Center as the infant died.

Dr. Leonard W. Cronkhite Jr., general director of the center, said: "We fired all the guns there were to fire."

In words of religious comfort, the President's close friend, Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, said: "He now lives in the nursery of the children of heaven."

Cardinal Cushing will say a private "Mass of the Angels" in his chapel at 10 a.m. Saturday. The President will fly up from Otis Air Force Base, where his wife is still hospitalized, to attend the service.

Burial will be in Holyhood Cemetery, Brookline.

After the services the President will return to Otis. Only immediate members of the family will attend.

The President left the medical center flew down to Otis, arriving about 9:30 at the hospital.

A doctor had told the mother her youngest child had died. She received the word at 6:35 a.m., from her obstetrician, Dr. John W. Walsh. She then was given a mild sedative and slept until the President arrived.

Stays With Jackie

Kennedy spent more than two hours in his wife's suite at the base hospital.

Also on hand were the President's two brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

There he had another sad task—to tell his children, Caroline, 5½, and John Jr., 2½, that the little baby brother they were expecting won't come home.

13 To Attend Private Funeral

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Only 13 people, all close relatives, have been invited to join President Kennedy Saturday at the private funeral mass for his infant son Patrick Bouvier Kennedy.

The mass will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing in his residential chapel in Boston.

Invited to join the President are his two brothers and their wives—Atty. Gen. and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen. and Mrs. Edward M. Kennedy; his three sisters and their husbands, Eunice and Sargent Shriver, Jean and Stephen Smith; Patricia and Peter Lawford; Mrs. Kennedy's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Princess Lee Radziwill.

Press secretary Pierre Salinger said one or more of them will stay with Mrs. Kennedy at the Otis Air Force Base Hospital dur-

Petitions Filed In Cambridge Racial Battle

1,657 Signatures To Be Screened

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Ninety petitions with 1,657 signatures, seeking a public vote on an equal accommodations amendment to the town charter, were taken from a sealed box by city officials Friday.

The number of signatures was well over the required minimum of 896 needed to force a referendum on the amendment, a key issue to racial peace in this community beset by violence this summer.

If the petitions are found to be legal, said Mayor Calvin W. Mowbray, he will announce a special election date at a council meeting Aug. 19.

At the same time, the mayor announced that "an outstanding group of Cambridge citizens" is forming a committee to support the charter amendment. Expressing distress that the petitions were filed, Mayor Mowbray said he and his council would work closely with the new committee.

"The duty of the mayor and city commissioners is to strive to make Cambridge a peaceful, prosperous city," he said in a statement. "We believe that passage of the charter amendment will do much to accomplish this purpose."

In the meantime, the mayor directed William A. Brotemarkle, Cambridge supervisor of elections, to begin verifying the signatures to see if all of those signing are qualified voters. Brotemarkle was given an Aug. 19 deadline for completing the task.

Part Of Agreement

The charter amendment was part of a racial agreement announced July 23 in the Washington office of Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, after 1½ days of negotiation by white and Negro leaders. Originally, integrationists had wanted a city ordinance on public accommodations which, unlike the amendment, could not be petitioned to a public vote.

National Guard troops sent to Cambridge, after racial demonstrations touched off violence, still are garrisoned in the community of 12,000. Mrs. Gloria Richardson of the Cambridge Nonviolent Action Committee has said forcing the amendment to a vote would not bring renewed demonstrations but that they would be resumed if the amendment is defeated at the polls.

When the petitions were filed at 3 p.m. Thursday, there were 4,479 registered voters in Cambridge. Twenty per cent of them — 896 signatures — was needed to successfully petition for referendum.

An accompanying letter formally asking "a vote of the people of Cambridge" was submitted with the petitions by Franklin Collins, one of the three persons who filed them. Collins operates a drug store which was a frequent target of demonstrators in Cambridge.

Must Call Election

Opening the sealed box of petitions had been delayed until City Attorney C. Awdry Thompson arrived in Cambridge from a visit to Annapolis. Thompson said today the special election would have to be held not less than 40 and not more than 60 days after city council finds the petitions in order, presumably at the Aug. 19 meeting mentioned by the mayor.

Mayor Mowbray did not elaborate on the membership of the committee or when it would meet or begin its work.

Recalling Cambridge's campaign for attracting new industries and its plan for having a University of Maryland branch established here, he said:

"I think reasonable men and women will agree that it hardly seems likely that Cambridge will realize its potential of becoming a center of industry and learning if we are beset with racial strife for years to come."

Funk Envisions 3 Bay Bridges

BALTIMORE (AP) — John B. Funk, chairman-director of the State Roads Commission, said Friday he believes a second Chesapeake Bay bridge will be built within five years and a third one will be constructed sometime in the 1970s.

Funk said no decision on locations of the new spans will be made until completion of a report on traffic patterns and needs in the Baltimore metropolitan area.

One new bridge is expected to parallel the present one, with still another expected to be built linking Baltimore and Kent Counties.

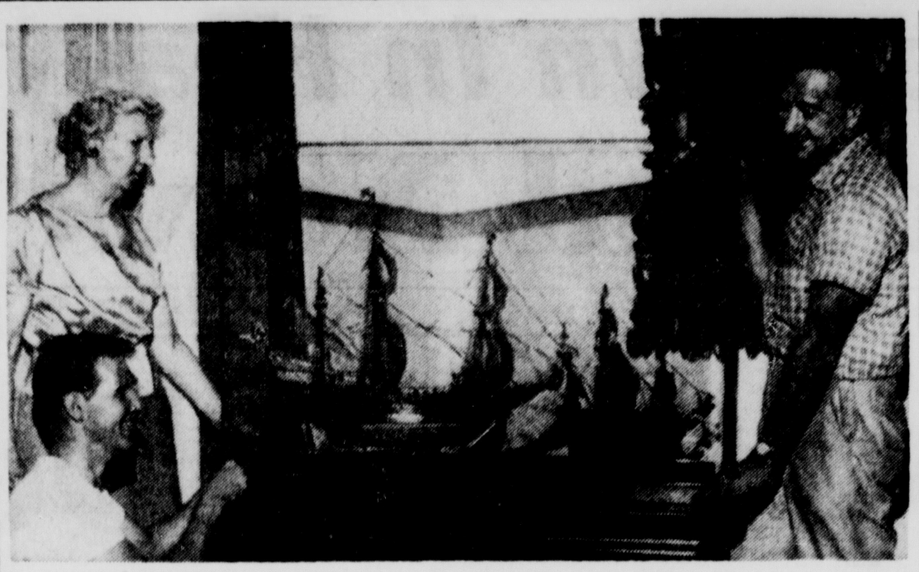

Funk said he expects the commission to decide on which of these should be built "shortly after" receiving the traffic report.

He is leaning toward giving priority to the parallel bridge, Funk said. It would cost between $60 million and $70 million, he estimated.

He said the other bridge, linking the Essex area of Baltimore County with the Tolchester area of Kent County would cost about $110 million.

Protecting Ark And Dove

Kern, who work for a Baltimore firm which made it. (AP Photofax).

Somebody In State Government Must Eat Crow Over False Charge Of Piracy

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Miss Louise Magruder, falsely accused by state officials of piracy in the disappearance of two ship models, is still waiting for somebody to eat crow.

Meanwhile, she said Friday, she has had a glass case built in her home to protect the models of the Ark and the Dove until the State Board of Public Works makes whatever overtures might be appropriate to get the models back for display at the New York World's Fair.

The models are of ships in which the Maryland settlers arrived.

"I haven't heard a word from anybody," she said with a chuckle, as workmen put the finishing touches on the case containing the models. "I'm still waiting."

The board—made up of the governor, comptroller and state treasurer—learned with some embarrassment June 17 that the suit it had filed to force Miss Magruder to return the models to the state library didn't have a charge to stand on.

The attorney general said Miss Magruder, an Annapolis geneaologist, actually owned the models which the state thought belonged to it. They had been given to her by the builder, John Dernoga of Baltimore. He loaned them to the state for display at the 1936 New York World's Fair and never got them back.

"That's a heck of a note," Gov. Tawes observed on learning the suit had to be dropped.

He directed board secretary Andrew Heubeck Jr. to see what could be done about persuading Miss Magruder to return the models so they could be displayed at next year's world's fair.

Heubeck passed the buck to State Librarian Nelson Molter, who had custody of the models before they were loaned in 1961 to the Colonial Dames of America for a display in Baltimore. Miss Magruder has had them since then.

Molter confirmed Friday that he has not yet contacted Miss Magruder. He didn't seem particularly anxious to return to the firing line but said he would probably give her a call next week.

It may be, however, that if any crow is to be eaten it will have to be served on an executive platter.

Her feud with the board over the ship models lasted some 18 months. Prior to that she lost one with the same agency over its transfer of the land office from the Hall of Records Building.

House Group Okays Cut In Capital Gains Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, pushing toward its final decision on President Kennedy's $10-billion tax cut proposal, approved Friday a substantial easing of the capital gains tax.

With this big decision out of the way, the signs point to a wind-up of the taxwriters' basic work next week and a House vote in September on the mammoth reduction and revision bill.

The reduction still is to be spelled out. On balance, the decisions made so far add up to an estimated first-year increase of $1 billion in revenues, to be offset against the cuts still to be decided on.

The major question—what tax rates will be recommended in place of the current 20-to-91-per-cent range — may be reached about midweek.

The committee made this decision Friday:

Persons who hold capital assets for more than two years should have a better tax break than the law prescribes for the profits on sales of assets held a minimum of six months.

Capital gains on assets held six months or more now are taxed at a maximum of 25 per cent. If the taxpayer is in a less-than-50-per-cent bracket, he can include 50 per cent of the capital gains in his regular income for tax purposes, thus paying less than 25 per cent.

The committee-approved provision would apply to gains on assets held more than two years. These would carry a maximum tax of only 21 per cent or could be included in income at only 40 per cent of the net gain.

Gains on assets held more than six months but less than two years would be taxed as at present. Gains on assets held less than six months would continue to be taxed as ordinary income.

The new provision would deny the preferred treatment to the gain on certain kinds of assets, regardless of the length of time held, such as unharvested crops, lump-sum distributions from pension funds, cattle and, with exceptions, timber. But stocks, bonds, real estate and most other ordinary kinds of investment would be eligible.

The Treasury estimated the change would, in the long run, relieve taxpayers by about $120 million a year.

But for the first year under the new rules the Treasury forecast instead a pickup in tax revenues of $310 million.

This seemingly contradictory prediction is based on the belief that many owners of property that has increased in value would like to sell but are unwilling to pay capital gains taxes at present rates. According to this theory, the reduction would have a one-time "unlocking" effect that would bring a big surge in tax collections.

Custodian Sentenced For Robbing Mail

BALTIMORE (AP) — James Stewart, 39, of Baltimore, was sentenced Friday to three months in prison on charges of stealing parcel post packages from the post office in suburban Ruxton.

Stewart, a former custodial worker at the post office, also was placed on probation for 15 months by Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in Federal District Court.

Boy 16 Gets 5 Years For Manslaughter

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 16-year-old boy convicted of manslaughter in the death of his 2-year-old niece was sentenced Friday to five years in the Maryland Institution for Males.

Judge Reben Oppenheimer imposed the sentence on Frank G. Rode in Youth Court, where he found the defendant innocent of murder last May 8.

The court was told the boy was baby-sitting with the child, Becky Wisniewski, and struck her when she angered him by becoming sick. The girl was the daughter of Rode's sister.

Fire Damages Wooden Pier At Baltimore

Big Harbor Shed Is Total Loss

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fire destroyed a wooden shed and part of a wooden pier Friday in Baltimore harbor.

Two old ships being scrapped were tied up alongside the pier. The fire spread to one of them but neither was damaged greatly.

There were no injuries but one of 90 firemen on the scene, Lt. Thomas Freburger, 45, was treated for smoke inhalation.

The four-alarm fire broke out about 12:30 p.m. at the waterfront installation of the Boston Metals Co., a scrap metal firm which dismantles old ships.

Boston Metals has a plant and a warehouse at the site in Curtis Bay in the Brooklyn section of South Baltimore about three miles from the city's business district.

Firemen directed by Chief John J. Killen controlled the fire in about an hour.

Lee Miller, a company vice president, said the fire apparently started in a wooden shed measuring 200 by 40 feet. The shed was destroyed, along with about half of the 300-foot pier on which it stood.

One of the two ships to be scrapped, the tanker S.S. Amelia, had a fire in the engine room. An old Navy light cruiser tied up on the other side of the pier was scorched but did not catch fire.

Twenty fire companies, two fireboats and three Coast Guard vessels fought the flames.

Boston Metals, near the southern end of the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel, adjoins a Du Pont chemical plant in the heavily industrialized waterfront section.

The pier, once used by city fireboats, is owned by the Baltimore & [illegible] Railroad and leased to the company.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — The Maryland Court Clerks Association opened its seventh annual meeting Friday with a talk by State Sen. William S. James, D-Harford.

Fifty-five clerks were registered, representing Baltimore City and all 23 counties, for the two-day meeting.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein will address the court clerks Saturday. New officers also will be elected. W. Andrew Seth of Cecil County is the outgoing president.

Herbert Hoover Observes 89th Birthday At His Desk

NEW YORK (AP) — Herbert Hoover observes his 89th birthday Saturday—still too young to take it easy.

The former president, who was desperately ill two months ago, works at his desk each day in his Waldorf-Astoria suite.

A spokesman described him as in good spirits but impatient to complete a book he is writing—a history of the past 30 years.

The man who coined the phrase "rugged individualism" made one concession to his convalescence. He dispensed with the informal news conference he customarily holds the day before a birthday.

But he issued a statement expressing his confidence in America and thanking "the thousands of people who sent me messages of goodwill during my illness and greetings now for my 89th birthday."

His doctors also issued a statement commenting on his strides from the illness.

"Mr. Hoover's health has improved continuously since his episode of gastro-intestinal bleeding in June. There has been no recurrence of bleeding since that time. His heart has remained normal in rhythm," the statement said.

"He has steadily become stronger and is able to work at his desk for short periods each day. The number of his visitors is still limited, and his physicians believe it advisable that he should not assume any public obligations at the present time."

As a precaution, doctors still visit Hoover regularly and a nurse is always on hand.

But not all of Hoover's writing is on the heavy side. He recently published a book, "Fishing for Fun," subtitled "And to Wash Your Soul," which has been hailed for wit and wisdom.

He said the President's mother, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, telephoned Friday afternoon from Paris and spoke to the President and his wife.

He said the President dissuaded her from returning to the United States for the funeral.

The President and his brother Edward spent an hour and 20 minutes with Mrs. Kennedy Friday afternoon. When they returned to the Squaw Island summer White House, they drove to see their father, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Salinger said it was the first time the President had talked with his father since the baby's death.

St. Marys Co. States Attorney Is Indicted

Norris Accused Of Malfeasance

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP) — The St. Marys County state's attorney, Charles A. Norris, 29, was accused Friday of malfeasance in office.

A special grand jury indicted Norris after a probe of a June 13 gambling raid which netted two well known gamblers: Joseph Nesline of Washington and Charles Tourine of Miami.

One of the two counts of the indictment against Norris charges that he failed to produce a John Passarelli as a witness in the trials of Nesline and Tourine. Both were convicted of gaming law violations.

Norris was also accused of failing to question Passarelli after he was subpoenaed by the grand jury in its investigation of the raid.

After he was indicted, Norris said that he had successfully prosecuted those arrested in the gambling raid.

"If the grand jury was advised to indict me for failure to perform my duties as state's attorney," he said, "perhaps the conscience of that jury may be as clear as mine."

"In reviewing the matter," he continued, "I must say that I would handle the investigation and prosecution of these cases exactly as I did in the past."

Norris took office Jan. 1 of this year.

Also indicted by the grand jury were Philip E. Gray, identified as the owner of the Sportsman's Club where the raid took place; Edward Hamway and C. Miles Mattingly. Hamway and Mattingly are said to have leased the club at the time of the raid.

Judge Philip H. Dorsey Jr., of Circuit Court, set bond at $3,000 each for Gray, Hamway and Mattingly. Norris was released on his own recognizance. They will be arraigned next Thursday.

Funk Envisions 3 Bay Bridges

BALTIMORE (AP) — John B. Funk, chairman-director of the State Roads Commission, said Friday he believes a second Chesapeake Bay bridge will be built within five years and a third one will be constructed sometime in the 1970s.

Funk said no decision on locations of the new spans will be made until completion of a report on traffic patterns and needs in the Baltimore metropolitan area.

One new bridge is expected to parallel the present one, with still another expected to be built linking Baltimore and Kent Counties.

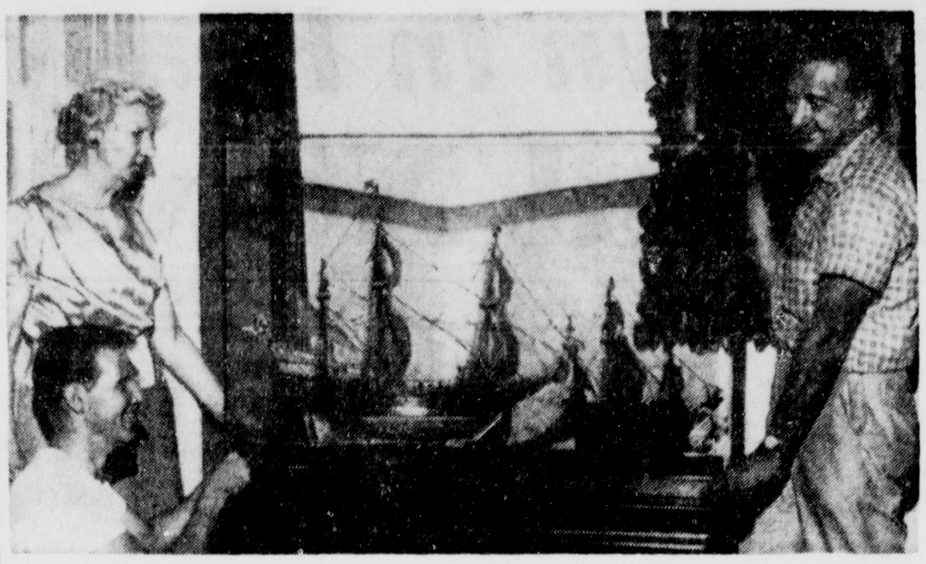

Funk said he expects the commission to decide on which of these should be built "shortly after" receiving the traffic report.

He is leaning toward giving priority to the parallel bridge, Funk said. It would cost between $60 million and $70 million, he estimated.

He said the other bridge, linking the Essex area of Baltimore County with the Tolchester area of Kent County would cost about $110 million.

Protecting Ark And Dove

Somebody In State Government Must Eat Crow Over False Charge Of Piracy

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Miss Louise Magruder, falsely accused by state officials of piracy in the disappearance of two ship models, is still waiting for somebody to eat crow.

Meanwhile, she said Friday, she has had a glass case built in her home to protect the models of the Ark and the Dove until the State Board of Public Works makes whatever overtures might be appropriate to get the models back for display at the New York World's Fair.

The models are of ships in which the Maryland settlers arrived.

"I haven't heard a word from anybody," she said with a chuckle, as workmen put the finishing touches on the case containing the models. "I'm still waiting."

The board—made up of the governor, comptroller and state treasurer—learned with some embarrassment June 17 that the suit it had filed to force Miss Magruder to return the models to the state library didn't have a charge to stand on.

The attorney general said Miss Magruder, an Annapolis geneaologist, actually owned the models which the state thought belonged to it. They had been given to her by the builder, John Dernoga of Baltimore. He loaned them to the state for display at the 1936 New York World's Fair and never got them back.

"That's a heck of a note," Gov. Tawes observed on learning the suit had to be dropped.

He directed board secretary Andrew Heubeck Jr. to see what could be done about persuading Miss Magruder to return the models so they could be displayed at next year's world's fair.

Heubeck passed the buck to State Librarian Nelson Molter, who had custody of the models before they were loaned in 1961 to the Colonial Dames of America for a display in Baltimore. Miss Magruder has had them since then.

Molter confirmed Friday that he has not yet contacted Miss Magruder. He didn't seem particularly anxious to return to the firing line but said he would probably give her a call next week.

It may be, however, that if any crow is to be eaten it will have to be served on an executive platter.

Her feud with the board over the ship models lasted some 18 months. Prior to that she lost one with the same agency over its transfer of the land office from the Hall of Records Building.

House Group Okays Cut In Capital Gains Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, pushing toward its final decision on President Kennedy's $10-billion tax cut proposal, approved Friday a substantial easing of the capital gains tax.

With this big decision out of the way, the signs point to a wind-up of the taxwriters' basic work next week and a House vote in September on the mammoth reduction and revision bill.

The reduction still is to be spelled out. On balance, the decisions made so far add up to an estimated first-year increase of $1 billion in revenues, to be offset against the cuts still to be decided on.

The major question—what tax rates will be recommended in place of the current 20-to-91-per-cent range — may be reached about midweek.

The committee made this decision Friday:

Persons who hold capital assets for more than two years should have a better tax break than the law prescribes for the profits on sales of assets held a minimum of six months.

Capital gains on assets held six months or more now are taxed at a maximum of 25 per cent. If the taxpayer is in a less-than-50-per-cent bracket, he can include 50 per cent of the capital gains in his regular income for tax purposes, thus paying less than 25 per cent.

The committee-approved provision would apply to gains on assets held more than two years. These would carry a maximum tax of only 21 per cent or could be included in income at only 40 per cent of the net gain.

Gains on assets held more than six months but less than two years would be taxed as at present. Gains on assets held less than six months would continue to be taxed as ordinary income.

The new provision would deny the preferred treatment to the gain on certain kinds of assets, regardless of the length of time held, such as unharvested crops, lump-sum distributions from pension funds, cattle and, with exceptions, timber. But stocks, bonds, real estate and most other ordinary kinds of investment would be eligible.

The Treasury estimated the change would, in the long run, relieve taxpayers by about $120 million a year.

But for the first year under the new rules the Treasury forecast instead a pickup in tax revenues of $310 million.

This seemingly contradictory prediction is based on the belief that many owners of property that has increased in value would like to sell but are unwilling to pay capital gains taxes at present rates. According to this theory, the reduction would have a one-time "unlocking" effect that would bring a big surge in tax collections.

Stewart, a former custodial worker at the post office, also was placed on probation for 15 months by Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in Federal District Court.

Boy 16 Gets 5 Years For Manslaughter

BALTIMORE (AP) — A 16-year-old boy convicted of manslaughter in the death of his 2-year-old niece was sentenced Friday to five years in the Maryland Institution for Males.

Judge Reben Oppenheimer imposed the sentence on Frank G. Rode in Youth Court, where he found the defendant innocent of murder last May 8.

The court was told the boy was baby-sitting with the child, Becky Wisniewski, and struck her when she angered him by becoming sick. The girl was the daughter of Rode's sister.

Fire Damages Wooden Pier At Baltimore

Big Harbor Shed Is Total Loss

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fire destroyed a wooden shed and part of a wooden pier Friday in Baltimore harbor.

Two old ships being scrapped were tied up alongside the pier. The fire spread to one of them but neither was damaged greatly.

There were no injuries but one of 90 firemen on the scene, Lt. Thomas Freburger, 45, was treated for smoke inhalation.

The four-alarm fire broke out about 12:30 p.m. at the waterfront installation of the Boston Metals Co., a scrap metal firm which dismantles old ships.

Boston Metals has a plant and a warehouse at the site in Curtis Bay in the Brooklyn section of South Baltimore about three miles from the city's business district.

Firemen directed by Chief John J. Killen controlled the fire in about an hour.

Lee Miller, a company vice president, said the fire apparently started in a wooden shed measuring 200 by 40 feet. The shed was destroyed, along with about half of the 300-foot pier on which it stood.

One of the two ships to be scrapped, the tanker S.S. Amelia, had a fire in the engine room. An old Navy light cruiser tied up on the other side of the pier was scorched but did not catch fire.

Twenty fire companies, two fireboats and three Coast Guard vessels fought the flames.

Boston Metals, near the southern end of the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel, adjoins a Du Pont chemical plant in the heavily industrialized waterfront section.

The pier, once used by city fireboats, is owned by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and leased to the company.

Fifty-five clerks were registered, representing Baltimore City and all 23 counties, for the two-day meeting.

Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein will address the court clerks Saturday. New officers also will be elected. W. Andrew Seth of Cecil County is the outgoing president.

The boys said their first plans are for new bicycles. (AP Photofax).

Herbert Hoover Observes 89th Birthday At His Desk

NEW YORK (AP) — Herbert Hoover observes his 89th birthday Saturday—still too young to take it easy.

The former president, who was desperately ill two months ago, works at his desk each day in his Waldorf-Astoria suite.

A spokesman described him as in good spirits but impatient to complete a book he is writing—a history of the past 30 years.

The man who coined the phrase "rugged individualism" made one concession to his convalescence. He dispensed with the informal news conference he customarily holds the day before a birthday.

But he issued a statement expressing his confidence in America and thanking "the thousands of people who sent me messages of goodwill during my illness and greetings now for my 89th birthday."

His doctors also issued a statement commenting on his strides from the illness.

"Mr. Hoover's health has improved continuously since his episode of gastro-intestinal bleeding in June. There has been no recurrence of bleeding since that time. His heart has remained normal in rhythm," the statement said.

"He has steadily become stronger and is able to work at his desk for short periods each day. The number of his visitors is still limited, and his physicians believe it advisable that he should not assume any public obligations at the present time."

As a precaution, doctors still visit Hoover regularly and a nurse is always on hand.

But not all of Hoover's writing is on the heavy side. He recently published a book, "Fishing for Fun," subtitled "And to Wash Your Soul," which has been hailed for wit and wisdom.

St. Marys Co. States Attorney Is Indicted

Norris Accused Of Malfeasance

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP) — The St. Marys County state's attorney, Charles A. Norris, 29, was accused Friday of malfeasance in office.

A special grand jury indicted Norris after a probe of a June 13 gambling raid which netted two well known gamblers: Joseph Nesline of Washington and Charles Tourine of Miami.

One of the two counts of the indictment against Norris charges that he failed to produce a John Passarelli as a witness in the trials of Nesline and Tourine. Both were convicted of gaming law violations.

Norris was also accused of failing to question Passarelli after he was subpoenaed by the grand jury in its investigation of the raid.

After he was indicted, Norris said that he had successfully prosecuted those arrested in the gambling raid.

"If the grand jury was advised to indict me for failure to perform my duties as state's attorney," he said, "perhaps the conscience of that jury may be as clear as mine."

"In reviewing the matter," he continued, "I must say that I would handle the investigation and prosecution of these cases exactly as I did in the past."

Norris took office Jan. 1 of this year.

Also indicted by the grand jury were Philip E. Gray, identified as the owner of the Sportsman's Club where the raid took place; Edward Hamway and C. Miles Mattingly. Hamway and Mattingly are said to have leased the club at the time of the raid.

Judge Philip H. Dorsey Jr., of Circuit Court, set bond at $3,000 each for Gray, Hamway and Mattingly. Norris was released on his own recognizance. They will be arraigned next Thursday.

County Plans Check On Lot For City Use

The Mayor and City Council's request to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for certain county lots on McNamee's Hill for installation of a 100,000 water tank and pumping station was discussed yesterday.

Albert S. Paye, county engineer, said he had gone to the site with C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, and found that the area requested was suitable for such use but that he would like to make another study of the tract to determine if there was any possibility the balance of the lots would be adversely affected.

The county commissioners indicated they would accede to the request of the city but would await Paye's additional check and report.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Powell, Pack Horse Road, thanked the board for having the road oiled to settle the dust. The couple also asked that something be done about a drainage ditch in front of their property which has been affected by recent placement of shale.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Moore, Potomac Hollow Road, wrote a letter of thanks for recent work done on the roadway.

Mrs. Lawrence Mallory appeared before the board to ask what the county planned in connection with a bridge across Lower Town Creek in the area where she resides on a farm.

Commissioner Russell Carder told her that he had checked into the matter and found that her farm is the only residence on the road across the creek but there are a number of camps in the Rocky Ford Gap section about half a mile distance. These are used seasonally, he pointed out.

Paye reported he had talked with a contractor who is figuring the cost of a bridge with a single span which has been requested by a group of people in the neighborhood. This would be a private project. Carder told Mrs. Mallory that the county has been studying the matter for some weeks and would have a definite answer in about a month.

Mrs. Mallory also reported that when county road workers graded the roadway near her barn they broke down a fence. Carder said he would check into this and have the fence replaced.

C&P Aids In W.Va. Cleanup Campaign

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday presented a $500 contribution to Gov. W. W. Barron in support of the statewide Clean-Up Campaign.

The $500 contribution was the third made by the C&P and another is planned next year.

The C&P also announced it will provide several thousand litter bags to county Clean-Up Campaign committees and will also distribute litter bags through service stations and tourist information bureaus.

Hibernian Auxiliary Visits Washington

United States Senator J. Glenn Beall, seated at his desk, was host in his office at the Capitol in Washington, D. C., to the Junior Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Mt. Savage on Wednesday. The group of girls in the auxiliary were accompanied by their councilor, Mrs. William P. Dickel, of Mt. Savage, and nine mothers.

Barron May Act On Racial Discrimination

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Executive orders to prohibit state officials from doing business with the state and to keep businesses issued by the state from practicing racial discrimination may be issued by Gov. W. W. Barron.

Announcement that he was considering such orders came from Barron during an hour-long news conference Friday morning. Barron said the order dealing with integration would be somewhat like the one issued by Gov. Bert Combs of Kentucky.

Barron had disclosed Thursday night that he would ask the West Virginia Armory Board to look into the insurance policy taken out on the Beckley National Guard Armory. The policy involved a firm headed by State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack Nuckols and a company in which Secretary of State Joe Burdett is an officer.

Barron, Burdett and State Auditor Denzil L. Gainer, who joined Barron in calling for the investigation, make up the Armory Board. Burdett was out of the city Friday and Nuckols said he had "no comment."

Discussing a variety of other topics, Barron:

—Indicated his political career would not come to an end with the expiration of his four-year term next year.

—Said any candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor would get his support if the candidate advocates continuation of policies set down by his administration.

—Predicted there would be more racial demonstrations in West Virginia although at the present time "they are not getting out of hand."

—Endorsed the action of a special committee that went ahead with repairs to the statehouse heating system without offering the work up for bids.

—Expressed concern over disclosure earlier this week that some rural area children may not be able to get to school this year because of a lack of qualified teachers.

Elaborating on one of his two possible orders, Barron said he felt that "in the future, we should be careful and not let government officials do business with the state or other closely-related arms of the government."

The Armory insurance taken out last year went to Raleigh Insurance Agency Inc., headed by Nuckols. Raleigh Insurance, in turn, gave coverage of the $1.3 million building to Diversified Fire and Casualty Co., a subsidiary of Diversified Mountaineer Corp., of which Burdett is a director and vice president.

Barron, asked if he had been offered any jobs in Washington after he leaves the governor's office, in event President Kennedy is re-elected next year, did not answer the question directly but said, "I think once you have embarked on a political career and have become a person who is in government...you want to stay in federal or state government."

The governor was questioned on reports that he would back State Commerce Commissioner Hulett C. Smith for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"It's merely a rumor," Barron commented. The governor added that he would not publicly back any candidate "but I would think, personally, I am very much interested in having my policies I would certainly back him."

During the discussion on politics, Barron said he thought that Bonn Brown, a close associate of the governor and among those considered as the top three likely candidates, "is putting his hat in the ring." Besides Smith and Brown, State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson was believed interested in entering the race for the nomination.

Endorsing the action of a special committee that went ahead with repairs to the boilers, Barron said the West Virginia Association of Plumbing, Heating and Cooling Contractors "does not understand the facts of the case as well as does the State Board of Public Works."

Barron said he accepted a report of the special committee that the boiler situation was an emergency and there was not enough time to go through with the normal bid-letting procedures. Earlier this week the association adopted a resolution which "condemned" the board for awarding a $100,000 contract for the repairs without competitive bidding.

Looking ahead to the Southern Governors Conference at White Sulphur Springs Aug. 18-21, Barron said the civil rights issue was not on the agenda for official discussion.

On the question of racial demonstrations in West Virginia, Barron said he did not believe they were getting "out of hand." However, he predicted that "there will be more demonstrations" and said that he felt West Virginia had done "a wonderful job...with integration."

"We have led the nation in integration, I believe," Barron said. "I am in favor of doing everything humanly possibly to end all segregation in West Virginia with the help of the NAACP and our own Human Rights Commission. I think we can do this in a peaceful manner."

Barron expressed concern with a report by State School Supt. Rex M. Smith earlier this week that some rural area children may have to sit out the next school year because of a lack of qualified teachers.

"I agree...it is a grave problem," Barron said. "Everything possible should be done so these kids don't sit out of school for a year. I will very soon sit down with Mr. Smith and the State Board of Education and see if something can't be done so these kids are not denied their education."

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Soybean futures ended heavy and led most other grain downward Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was unchanged to off 3/8; corn unchanged to off 1/2; oats unchanged to off 3/8; rye off 3/8 to up 1/8; and soybeans off 1 1/2 to 1 3/4.

Activity was limited in the grain market as traders awaited the government crop report due after the close. Lower prices reflected a tendency to even up positions.

Soybeans lost more than a cent a bushel on liquidation. Many dealers expected that the official estimate would show improved crop prospects.

Oil and meal dropped with soybeans. Most oil contracts hit new lows for the season.

Corn weakened as traders looked for a large crop estimate.

Wheat declined in sympathy with other grains in listless trade.

Picnic Set Tomorrow

Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion of Ridgeley, will hold its annual family picnic tomorrow at McDonald's beach and picnic area off the old Keyser Road.

K. Albert Wolfe, post commander, said the picnic will be held from noon to 6 p. m., and that the post home will be closed until after the picnic.

NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, (1950 Edition) notice is hereby given that the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland did, in regular session Monday, August 5, 1963, approve the Report of Commissioners for the closing of an unnamed twelve (12) foot alley running parallel with First Street and perpendicular to Seymour Street (now Race Street) in the City of Cumberland, Maryland, between Lots Nos. 1 and 2 of Highland Addition, Cumberland, which face on Oldtown Road, and Lot N. 3 of said Addition, facing on Seymour Street (now Race Street) which alley is shown on the Plat of the Highland Addition of Cumberland, said Plat being known as Plat No. 144 in the City's Engineering Office, Cumberland, Maryland, and said alley runs a distance of approximately 103 feet. After meeting on the premises (10:30 A. M. July 18, 1963) and remaining there for a period in excess of one-half hour; and after considering the entire matter and hearing those persons present at the time and place heretofore mentioned; after investigating the entire area to be closed the following is the unanimous opinion of the Commissioners appointed to close the aforementioned alley:

"The Commissioners having considered the entire matter and, after investigating the entire area to be closed, determined that said 12 foot alley should be closed. The Commissioners further determined that the owners of the lots binding on said 12 foot alley running parallel with First Street and perpendicular to Seymour Street (now Race Street) in Cumberland, Maryland, for a distance of approximately 103 feet, would be benefited by closing said alley.

The Commissioners felt that Mr. Brooks M. Crites, now owner of Lot No. 3 of the Highland Addition to South Cumberland, has been benefited by the closing of said alley to the extent of One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($125.00). And that Mrs. Lena Harris, owner of Lots Nos. 1 and 2 of the Highland Addition to South Cumberland, has been benefited as a result of the closing of said alley to the extent of One Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($125.00). Further, that all costs incurred as a result of the closing of said alley should be paid from these sums which represent payment to the City for the benefits found by the Commissioners to be enuring to the said abutting property owners."

Any person, persons, firm or corporation feeling aggrieved by the decision of the Commissioners may appeal therefrom within thirty (30) days after August 5, 1963, and filing written notice of such appeal with the City Clerk of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, who will transmit same to the Circuit Court for Allegany County to be docketed for jury trial.

County Plans Check On Lot For City Use

The Mayor and City Council's request to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners for certain county lots on McNamee's Hill for installation of a 100,000 water tank and pumping station was discussed yesterday.

Albert S. Paye, county engineer, said he had gone to the site with C. R. Nuzum, city engineer, and found that the area requested was suitable for such use but that he would like to make another study of the tract to determine if there was any possibility the balance of the lots would be adversely affected.

The county commissioners indicated they would accede to the request of the city but would await Paye's additional check and report.

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Powell, Pack Horse Road, thanked the board for having the road oiled to settle the dust. The couple also asked that something be done about a drainage ditch in front of their property which has been affected by recent placement of shale.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Moore, Potomac Hollow Road, wrote a letter of thanks for recent work done on the roadway.

Mrs. Lawrence Mallory appeared before the board to ask what the county planned in connection with a bridge across Lower Town Creek in the area where she resides on a farm.

Commissioner Russell Carder told her that he had checked into the matter and found that her farm is the only residence on the road across the creek but there are a number of camps in the Rocky Ford Gap section about half a mile distance. These are used seasonally, he pointed out.

Paye reported he had talked with a contractor who is figuring the cost of a bridge with a single span which has been requested by a group of people in the neighborhood. This would be a private project. Carder told Mrs. Mallory that the county has been studying the matter for some weeks and would have a definite answer in about a month.

Mrs. Mallory also reported that when county road workers graded the roadway near her barn they broke down a fence. Carder said he would check into this and have the fence replaced.

Barron May Act On Racial Discrimination

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— Executive orders to prohibit state officials from doing business with the state and to keep businesses issued by the state from practicing racial discrimination may be issued by Gov. W. W. Barron.

Announcement that he was considering such orders came from Barron during an hour-long news conference Friday morning. Barron said the order dealing with integration would be somewhat like the one issued by Gov. Bert Combs of Kentucky.

Barron had disclosed Thursday night that he would ask the West Virginia Armory Board to look into the insurance policy taken out on the Beckley National Guard Armory. The policy involved a firm headed by State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack Nuckols and a company in which Secretary of State Joe Burdett is an officer.

Barron, Burdett and State Auditor Denzil L. Gainer, who joined Barron in calling for the investigation, make up the Armory Board. Burdett was out of the city Friday and Nuckols said he had "no comment."

Discussing a variety of other topics, Barron:

—Indicated his political career would not come to an end with the expiration of his four-year term next year.

—Said any candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor would get his support if the candidate advocates continuation of policies set down by his administration.

—Predicted there would be more racial demonstrations in West Virginia although at the present time "they are not getting out of hand."

—Endorsed the action of a special committee that went ahead with repairs to the statehouse heating system without offering the work up for bids.

—Expressed concern over disclosure earlier this week that some rural area children may not be able to get to school this year because of a lack of qualified teachers.

Elaborating on one of his two possible orders, Barron said he felt that "in the future, we should be careful and not let government officials do business with the state or other closely-related arms of the government."

The Armory insurance taken out last year went to Raleigh Insurance Agency Inc., headed by Nuckols. Raleigh Insurance, in turn, gave coverage of the $1.3 million building to Diversified Fire and Casualty Co., a subsidiary of Diversified Mountaineer Corp., of which Burdett is a director and vice president.

Barron, asked if he had been offered any jobs in Washington after he leaves the governor's office, in event President Kennedy is re-elected next year, did not answer the question directly but said, "I think once you have embarked on a political career and have become a person who is in government...you want to stay in federal or state government."

The governor was questioned on reports that he would back State Commerce Commissioner Hulett C. Smith for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"It's merely a rumor," Barron commented. The governor added that he would not publicly back any candidate "but I would think, personally, I am very much interested in having my policies I would certainly back him."

During the discussion on politics, Barron said he thought that Bonn Brown, a close associate of the governor and among those considered as the top three likely candidates, "is putting his hat in the ring." Besides Smith and Brown, State Atty. Gen. C. Donald Robertson was believed interested in entering the race for the nomination.

Endorsing the action of a special committee that went ahead with repairs to the boilers, Barron said the West Virginia Association of Plumbing, Heating and Cooling Contractors "does not understand the facts of the case as well as does the State Board of Public Works."

Barron said he accepted a report of the special committee that the boiler situation was an emergency and there was not enough time to go through with the normal bid-letting procedures. Earlier this week the association adopted a resolution which "condemned" the board for awarding a $100,000 contract for the repairs without competitive bidding.

Looking ahead to the Southern Governors Conference at White Sulphur Springs Aug. 18-21, Barron said the civil rights issue was not on the agenda for official discussion.

On the question of racial demonstrations in West Virginia, Barron said he did not believe they were getting "out of hand." However, he predicted that "there will be more demonstrations" and said that he felt West Virginia had done "a wonderful job...with integration."

"We have led the nation in integration, I believe," Barron said. "I am in favor of doing everything humanly possibly to end all segregation in West Virginia with the help of the NAACP and our own Human Rights Commission. I think we can do this in a peaceful manner."

Barron expressed concern with a report by State School Supt. Rex M. Smith earlier this week that some rural area children may have to sit out the next school year because of a lack of qualified teachers.

"I agree...it is a grave problem," Barron said. "Everything possible should be done so these kids don't sit out of school for a year. I will very soon sit down with Mr. Smith and the State Board of Education and see if something can't be done so these kids are not denied their education."

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Soybean futures ended heavy and led most other grain downward Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the close, wheat was unchanged to off ⅞; corn unchanged to off ½; oats unchanged to off ⅜; rye off ⅜ to up ⅛; and soybeans off 1½ to 1¾.

Activity was limited in the grain market as traders awaited the government crop report due after the close. Lower prices reflected a tendency to even up positions.

Soybeans lost more than a cent a bushel on liquidation. Many dealers expected that the official estimate would show improved crop prospects.

Oil and meal dropped with soybeans. Most oil contracts hit new lows for the season.

Corn weakened as traders looked for a large crop estimate.

Wheat declined in sympathy with other grains in listless trade.

Oats eased on hedge selling. September and December contracts traded at new seasonal lows. Rye slipped in featureless trade.

County Aid In Road Job Asked By Valley Road Women

Two women from the Valley Road section just outside the city limits appeared again yesterday before the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to seek assistance in having the city widen and improve the roadway.

The women, Mrs. Geraldine Hughes and Mrs. Wanda Wigfield, told the county board that they do not seem to be getting any action from city officials although several councilmen have said they are sympathetic to their problem.

The county commissioners emphasized that the City of Cumberland has jurisdiction over that part of the road which is within the city limits. The women said the county section of the road is not involved in the problem.

Commissioner Robert Little Ebert said he would meet with Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, city street commissioner, to see what can be accomplished. Albert S. Paye, county engineer, will also meet with C. R. Nuzum, city engineer to discuss the technical aspects of the road as far as widening or improvements which are necessary.

The women said they also plan to meet with school officials to ask their aid in view of the school buses using the route to transport several hundred children.

Firms May Spill Waste Into Streams

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The Department of Natural Resources has granted permits to two more firms to release wastes into state streams provided they do not materially contribute to stream pollution.

They are the Slab Fork Coal Co., Slab Fork, Raleigh County, and the Corning Glass Works, Martinsburg.

The department granted the Slab Fork firm permission to operate a coal washery on a tributary of the Guyandotte River while Corning has been allowed to discharge wastes into Buzzard Run.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

A charming woman knows when to tip.

In the matter of tipping — whether travelling, in a restaurant, or elsewhere — there are many general rules. Apart from the courtesies which we all expect, it is well to remember that the wages of all who are usually tipped are predicated on this custom. Whether we like it or not, it is a matter of justice that they must be tipped.

The old rule of tipping ten per cent of the bill is outmoded. But here's a tip to you that's even more important if you want to be considered charming. Never offer a gratuity for willing service without a smile, a straightforward look, and "Thank you" or "Thank you very much."

In restaurants, except the most expensive where your conscience extracts a big tip, leave 25c for a check between $1.00 and $2.00. For larger checks, about 12 per cent is right — 50c on a $4.00 check or $1.25 on $10.00.

Tipping is strictly forbidden on airplanes.

On trains, Pullman porters are usually given 25c for a day trip; 50c a night for an upper berth, 75c for a lower, $1.00 for a roomette, $2.00 to $3.00 for bedroom or compartment.

In hotels, the chambermaid should receive 10 per cent of the cost of your room for a short stay, $3.00 to $4.00 for a week. For room service give the bellboy 25 per cent of the check unless the bill is over $5.00; then 15 per cent is adequate.

For taxis in big cities, no less than 10c for a 50c ride and beyond that, 20 per cent.

"MONA'S MOANING WAS MADDENING" is just one of the verbal exercises toward voice development found in the booklet, "Your Most Attractive Voice." A copy's yours for 10c when you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to John Robert Powers in care of this newspaper.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 15 and I'm writing in behalf of a friend of mine who is the same age. She said it would not be right for her to write to you because it might sound as if she were criticizing her parents. She did give me permission, however, to ask you some questions.

This girl is not permitted to wear makeup — not even lipstick — because it is against her religion. She can't date and is not allowed to talk to boys on the telephone. She can't dance because this is prohibited by her religion, also.

But the saddest thing is that the poor kid is not allowed to wear a bathing suit. If she wants to go swimming she has to wear a dress. Of course she's ashamed and refuses to go swimming with us girls unless we go to an out of the way creek.

Can you do something to help her?—A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: I have received countless letters from teenagers who are unhappy because their religion prohibits many things which they believe are harmless — such as dancing and movies. I cannot advise these teenagers to oppose their religious training.

If this girl's religion prohibits the wearing of a bathing suit, then I am not going to tell her to wear one. Unfortunately, some teenagers who feel that their religious restrictions are unjust break loose and do everything they shouldn't do the first moment they get out from under the eyes of their parents.

DEAR ANN: Please print this letter for the husband who won't allow his wife to hire a sitter for their 18-month-old baby because he doesn't think young children should be left with "strangers."

We had an identical experience. My husband wasn't the only one who was hipped on the subject, I was just as bad. We ignored the advice of friends and even told our doctor he "didn't understand." We thought we were being devoted parents and that everyone else was wrong.

When our little Debbie was two and a half years old I had to be hospitalized for three weeks. Debbie was terribly upset by my absence. She had nightmares, tantrums, and wouldn't eat or sleep.

When I returned from the hospital Debbie was a clinging, frightened, thumb-sucking, bedwetting child. It took us three years to get her straightened around.

Now Debbie has a brother. We introduced him to sitters when he was three weeks old and he is now a cheerful, well-adjusted little guy who loves everybody. Thought you'd like to know. — TAKING NO CHANCES.

DEAR TAKING: Many thanks for sharing your experiences. So much has been said about togetherness I'm happy to help strike a blow for a little "apartness" which I support wholeheartedly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A certain member of our family (who must not be identified) is the sweetest soul in the world — also the lousiest cook.

For years now we've been having family picnics and each of us brings something. This person has yet to bring anything the rest of us can eat. She can even ruin lemonade — not enough lemons, too much sugar, lukewarm. Her fried chicken is so highly seasoned even the dog wouldn't eat it.

No one wants to hurt her feelings yet we all agree she should make a fair contribution to the picnics. Is there a solution? — UNHOLY THREE.

DEAR THREE: This "sweet soul" should be asked to bring items which need only be purchased—franks, hamburger buns, a case of soft drinks, paper napkins, potato chips. Get the idea?

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experience of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl 15 and I'm writing in behalf of a friend of mine who is the same age. She said it would not be right for her to write to you because it might sound as if she were criticizing her parents. She did give me permission, however, to ask you some questions.

This girl is not permitted to wear makeup — not even lipstick — because it is against her religion. She can't date and is not allowed to talk to boys on the telephone. She can't dance because this is prohibited by her religion, also.

But the saddest thing is that the poor kid is not allowed to wear a bathing suit. If she wants to go swimming she has to wear a dress. Of course she's ashamed and refuses to go swimming with us girls unless we go to an out of the way creek.

Can you do something to help her?—A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: I have received countless letters from teenagers who are unhappy because their religion prohibits many things which they believe are harmless — such as dancing and movies. I cannot advise these teenagers to oppose their religious training.

If this girl's religion prohibits the wearing of a bathing suit, then I am not going to tell her to wear one. Unfortunately, some teenagers who feel that their religious restrictions are unjust break loose and do everything they shouldn't do the first moment they get out from under the eyes of their parents.

DEAR ANN: Please print this letter for the husband who won't allow his wife to hire a sitter for their 18-month-old baby because he doesn't think young children should be left with "strangers."

We had an identical experience. My husband wasn't the only one who was hipped on the subject, I was just as bad. We ignored the advice of friends and even told our doctor he "didn't understand." We thought we were being devoted parents and that everyone else was wrong.

When our little Debbie was two and a half years old I had to be hospitalized for three weeks. Debbie was terribly upset by my absence. She had nightmares, tantrums, and wouldn't eat or sleep.

When I returned from the hospital Debbie was a clinging, frightened, thumb-sucking, bed-wetting child. It took us three years to get her straightened around.

Now Debbie has a brother. We introduced him to sitters when he was three weeks old and he is now a cheerful, well-adjusted little guy who loves everybody. Thought you'd like to know. — TAKING NO CHANCES.

DEAR TAKING: Many thanks for sharing your experiences. So much has been said about togetherness I'm happy to help strike a blow for a little "apartness" which I support wholeheartedly.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A certain member of our family (who must not be identified) is the sweetest soul in the world — also the lousiest cook.

For years now we've been having family picnics and each of us brings something. This person has yet to bring anything the rest of us can eat. She can even ruin lemonade — not enough lemons, too much sugar, lukewarm. Her fried chicken is so highly seasoned even the dog wouldn't eat it.

No one wants to hurt her feelings yet we all agree she should make a fair contribution to the picnics. Is there a solution? — UNHOLY THREE.

DEAR THREE: This "sweet soul" should be asked to bring items which need only be purchased—franks, hamburger buns, a case of soft drinks, paper napkins, potato chips. Get the idea?

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experience of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

A charming woman knows when to tip.

In the matter of tipping — whether travelling, in a restaurant, or elsewhere — there are many general rules. Apart from the courtesies which we all expect, it is well to remember that the wages of all who are usually tipped are predicated on this custom. Whether we like it or not, it is a matter of justice that they must be tipped.

The old rule of tipping ten per cent of the bill is outmoded. But here's a tip to you that's even more important if you want to be considered charming. Never offer a gratuity for willing service without a smile, a straightforward look, and "Thank you" or "Thank you very much."

In restaurants, except the most expensive where your conscience extracts a big tip, leave 25c for a check between $1.00 and $2.00. For larger checks, about 12 per cent is right — 50c on a $4.00 check or $1.25 on $10.00.

Tipping is strictly forbidden on airplanes.

On trains, Pullman porters are usually given 25c for a day trip; 50c a night for an upper berth, 75c for a lower, $1.00 for a roomette, $2.00 to $3.00 for bedroom or compartment.

In hotels, the chambermaid should receive 10 per cent of the cost of your room for a short stay. $3.00 to $4.00 for a week. For room service give the bellboy 25 per cent of the check unless the bill is over $5.00; then 15 per cent is adequate.

For taxis in big cities, no less than 10c for a 50c ride and beyond that, 20 per cent.

"MONA'S MOANING WAS MADDENING" is just one of the verbal exercises toward voice development found in the booklet, "Your Most Attractive Voice." A copy's yours for 10c when you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to John Robert Powers in care of this newspaper.

Wicked Dodge City Fell To Minister

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

One hot summer day in 1877, the train from the east pulled into Dodge City, Kan., bearing a small, dignified man in top hat and tailcoat.

He attracted curious looks and a few snickers as he climbed down from the dusty railroad coach, claimed his valise, and made his way through a crowd of roughly dressed cowpokes to the hotel on Front Street.

Dodge City in those days was proud of its reputation as "the wickedest town in the West." And it fully deserved the title. Front Street was about as wide open as a street can get. The saloons stayed open all night, and the houses of prostitution did a booming business. Any cattleman who got tired of liquor and sex could find a high-stakes poker game to keep him amused. Gun fights and wanton killings were almost as common, in actual fact, as TV Westerns would have you believe.

The one thing that Dodge City didn't have — and didn't want — was a church.

Several itinerant preachers had ventured into the "Babylon of the West" but all of them had left precipitately, at the invitation of the townfolk.

The little man in the top hat may have thought of all this when he boldly signed his name in the hotel register:

"The Reverend Ormond W. Wright."

The Rev. Mr. Wright was a field representative of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions in New York. He had not come to Dodge City to conduct a few preaching services and flee for his life. His audacious purpose was to plant the cross of Christ firmly and conspicuously in this citadel of Satan. He had come, in short, to build a church.

"Why this man succeeded where others had failed remains a historical mystery," said Presbyterian Life magazine this week, in an article paying overdue tribute to the little-known preacher.

Actually, it's not such a mystery. Old histories of Dodge City record an incident which took place shortly after the Rev. Mr. Wright's arrival, which made a tremendous impression on the gun-toting cowboys and the women who entertained them.

A prostitute had been killed by a stray bullet during a saloon brawl. A delegation of dismayed and drunken cowboys went to the preacher's hotel room and awakened him with loud knocking on the door. They told him what had happened, and asked him to give the luckless girl "Christian burial."

In those strait-laced days, most ministers would have huffily rejected such a request. But the Rev. Mr. Wright did not. He performed the funeral service, reading over the girl's grave the Gospel account of Christ's tenderness toward a woman taken in adultery.

This act of compassion seems to have established a rapport between the prim-looking little preacher and the rough men and women whom he had come to serve. The Rev. Mr. Wright soon began to hold religious services in whatever quarters were available to him — usually a saloon or dance hall. He was able to tell the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, in his first official report, that he had 13 regular members of his congregation.

The board sent word that it would contribute $450 — a whopping sum in those days — for the construction of a church building, provided the local residents would raise a matching sum. It was taken for granted in New York that it would take the Rev. Mr. Wright a year or two to obtain his half of the building fund.

But the word got around Front Street that Preacher Wright needed $450 to build a church. The hat was passed in the saloons and bawdy houses, and on one roaring Saturday night, the whole sum was contributed, with a few dollars to spare.

And that's how Dodge City got its first church.

Wicked Dodge City Fell To Minister

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

One hot summer day in 1877, the train from the east pulled into Dodge City, Kan., bearing a small, dignified man in top hat and tailcoat.

He attracted curious looks and a few snickers as he climbed down from the dusty railroad coach, claimed his valise, and made his way through a crowd of roughly dressed cowpokes to the hotel on Front Street.

Dodge City in those days was proud of its reputation as "the wickedest town in the West." And it fully deserved the title. Front Street was about as wide open as a street can get. The saloons stayed open all night, and the houses of prostitution did a booming business. Any cattleman who got tired of liquor and sex could find a high-stakes poker game to keep him amused. Gun fights and wanton killings were almost as common, in actual fact, as TV Westerns would have you believe.

The one thing that Dodge City didn't have — and didn't want — was a church.

Several itinerant preachers had ventured into the "Babylon of the West" but all of them had left precipitately, at the invitation of the townfolk.

The little man in the top hat may have thought of all this when he boldly signed his name in the hotel register:

"The Reverend Ormond W. Wright."

The Rev. Mr. Wright was a field representative of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions in New York. He had not come to Dodge City to conduct a few preaching services and flee for his life. His audacious purpose was to plant the cross of Christ firmly and conspicuously in this citadel of Satan. He had come, in short, to build a church.

"Why this man succeeded where others had failed remains a historical mystery," said Presbyterian Life magazine this week, in an article paying overdue tribute to the little-known preacher.

Actually, it's not such a mystery. Old histories of Dodge City record an incident which took place shortly after the Rev. Mr. Wright's arrival, which made a tremendous impression on the gun-toting cowboys and the women who entertained them.

A prostitute had been killed by a stray bullet during a saloon brawl. A delegation of dismayed and drunken cowboys went to the preacher's hotel room and awakened him with loud knocking on the door. They told him what had happened, and asked him to give the luckless girl "Christian burial."

In those strait-laced days, most ministers would have huffily rejected such a request. But the Rev. Mr. Wright did not. He performed the funeral service, reading over the girl's grave the Gospel account of Christ's tenderness toward a woman taken in adultery.

This act of compassion seems to have established a rapport between the prim-looking little preacher and the rough men and women whom he had come to serve. The Rev. Mr. Wright soon began to hold religious services in whatever quarters were available to him — usually a saloon or dance hall. He was able to tell the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, in his first official report, that he had 13 regular members of his congregation.

The board sent word that it would contribute $450 — a whopping sum in those days — for the construction of a church building, provided the local residents would raise a matching sum. It was taken for granted in New York that it would take the Rev. Mr. Wright a year or two to obtain his half of the building fund.

But the word got around Front Street that Preacher Wright needed $450 to build a church. The hat was passed in the saloons and bawdy houses, and on one roaring Saturday night, the whole sum was contributed, with a few dollars to spare.

And that's how Dodge City got its first church.

More Aerial County Maps Are Planned

Additional mapping of Allegany County is planned by the County Planning and Zoning Commission to facilitate the studies for the Frostburg area to tie-in with the LaVale sewer lines and thence to the City of Cumberland sewage disposal plant.

Albert S. Paye, county engineer, said the mapping would be of a 23½ square mile area extending from LaVale to Frostburg and the adjacent areas where sewage lines would be run.

Cost of the additional aerial mapping would be $13,160 with the state and federal governments paying the bulk. The county's share of the mapping costs would be $3,500.

Paye informed the board that the horizontal and vertical maps with topography, roads, structures and wooded areas shown would be of great benefit in engineering studies for the proposed project.

The original mapping of the county from the air did not include the section provided for by yesterday's action of the board. Some of the aerial maps and topography drawings and other data have been received by the planning and zoning unit.

The aerial mapping and additional data which would be available would eliminate field survey work, which is expensive. The aerial maps and other data is more exact and would provide excellent material for engineers in their studies, Paye pointed out.

Peach Crop Lowest In Many Years

Area orchardists have started the harvest of the bleakest peach crop in over a generation, sources in this section of the Appalachian fruit belt reported.

The January freeze that killed the buds in the wood has reduced the usually rich peach crop to below one-fourth of the normal production.

R. L. Sumner, Romney, manager of Mountain Fruit Sales Inc., said the peach market is in good shape in the east, but the Hampshire growers do not figure into it to any extent.

Moisture conditions have improved in recent days, but are still far below par. Several rains have been received in this section, but they have been spotty as they have been all this summer.

However, August precipitation conditions are still much better than the very dry July.

Sumner said the combination of the January 15 degrees below zero freeze and the drought has resulted in a crop that is smaller than in the middle 30s, a generation ago.

Some estimate their harvest will be only 15 per cent of normal while others, 20 per cent.

What peaches that remain are beginning to move to market. The biggest crops will be the Elbertas and the J. H. Hale's which are picked in the last two weeks of this month.

Good rainfall conditions would greatly help to increase the size of these two popular varieties which are grown normally to a large extent in area orchards.

While Mountain Fruit Sales is a large cooperative of growers in the Hampshire County section, Consolidated Orchards Company of Paw Paw has peach orchards in the Cumberland area.

Earlier, Henry W. Miller, president, said that the freeze had put the Irons Mountain peach orchards out of the commercial market.

County Boys At 4-H Event

A look at two of the six youth leaders at Maryland 4-H Club Week at College Park campus of University of Maryland this week finds them top 4-H club members.

David Norris, Baltimore Pike, is the assistant chief of the Iroquois Nation at the Club week, while James Heavner, Hazen Road, is assistant chief of the Algonquin Nation.

The boy 4-H members at Club Week are divided into two groups for activity purposes.

Firemen Plan Concession Stand

Plans for a concession stand at the Cumberland Fair during the week of August 18 were made Thursday by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company.

Daniel Fradiska will be chairman of the stand and firemen will be scheduled to work the stand with eight men needed.

Meetings of the fire company for August 28 and September 4 have been cancelled. On September 11 the firemen will hold a hamburg and wiener roast with members of the auxiliary as guests.

The fire company will take part in the parade at Corriganville on August 15 and in Keyser on August 24.

The Ladies Auxiliary reported on the blacktopping of the parking lot at the fire hall. The work cost $1,400 and was paid for by the Auxiliary, according to Mrs. Mary Settle, president.

School To Register New Students

Registration of all students not previously registered at Allegany High School will be held Monday, Dr. W. Ardell Haines, principal, announced.

This does not include those new seventh graders who will come from the feeder schools, which are the elementary schools in Allegany's territory.

John Snyder, guidance counselor, will be available Monday for the new students from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Instrument Company Gets Contract

Of the $108,000,000 in contracts awarded in June by the NASA-Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., in support of its space vehicle development programs, Maryland firms received only $200,721 in the work.

A Cumberland company, Allegany Instruments Division of Textron Electronics, Inc., was awarded a contract for $26,890 for the construction of pressure instruments.

More Aerial County Maps Are Planned

Additional mapping of Allegany County is planned by the County Planning and Zoning Commission to facilitate the studies for the Frostburg area to tie-in with the LaVale sewer lines and thence to the City of Cumberland sewage disposal plant.

Albert S. Paye, county engineer, said the mapping would be of a 23½ square mile area extending from LaVale to Frostburg and the adjacent areas where sewage lines would be run.

Cost of the additional aerial mapping would be $13,160 with the state and federal governments paying the bulk. The county's share of the mapping costs would be $3,500.

Paye informed the board that the horizontal and vertical maps with topography, roads, structures and wooded areas shown would be of great benefit in engineering studies for the proposed project.

The original mapping of the county from the air did not include the section provided for by yesterday's action of the board. Some of the aerial maps and topography drawings and other data have been received by the planning and zoning unit.

The aerial mapping and additional data which would be available would eliminate field survey work, which is expensive. The aerial maps and other data is more exact and would provide excellent material for engineers in their studies, Paye pointed out.

Peach Crop Lowest In Many Years

Area orchardists have started the harvest of the bleakest peach crop in over a generation, sources in this section of the Appalachian fruit belt reported.

The January freeze that killed the buds in the wood has reduced the usually rich peach crop to below one-fourth of the normal production.

R. L. Sumner, Romney, manager of Mountain Fruit Sales Inc., said the peach market is in good shape in the east, but the Hampshire growers do not figure into it to any extent.

Moisture conditions have improved in recent days, but are still far below par. Several rains have been received in this section, but they have been spotty as they have been all this summer.

However, August precipitation conditions are still much better than the very dry July.

Sumner said the combination of the January 15 degrees below zero freeze and the drought has resulted in a crop that is smaller than in the middle 30s, a generation ago.

Some estimate their harvest will be only 15 per cent of normal while others, 20 per cent.

What peaches that remain are beginning to move to market. The biggest crops will be the Elbertas and the J. H. Hale's which are picked in the last two weeks of this month.

Good rainfall conditions would greatly help to increase the size of these two popular varieties which are grown normally to a large extent in area orchards.

While Mountain Fruit Sales is a large cooperative of growers in the Hampshire County section, Consolidated Orchards Company of Paw Paw has peach orchards in the Cumberland area.

Earlier, Henry W. Miller, president, said that the freeze had put the Irons Mountain peach orchards out of the commercial market.

County Boys At 4-H Event

A look at two of the six youth leaders at Maryland 4-H Club Week at College Park campus of University of Maryland this week finds them top 4-H club members.

David Norris, Baltimore Pike, is the assistant chief of the Iroquois Nation at the Club week, while James Heavner, Hazen Road, is assistant chief of the Algonquin Nation.

The boy 4-H members at Club Week are divided into two groups for activity purposes.

School To Register New Students

Registration of all students not previously registered at Allegany High School will be held Monday, Dr. W. Ardell Haines, principal, announced.

This does not include those new seventh graders who will come from the feeder schools, which are the elementary schools in Allegany's territory.

John Snyder, guidance counselor, will be available Monday for the new students from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Instrument Company Gets Contract

Of the $108,000,000 in contracts awarded in June by the NASA-Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., in support of its space vehicle development programs, Maryland firms received only $200,721 in the work.

A Cumberland company, Allegany Instruments Division of Textron Electronics, Inc., was awarded a contract for $26,890 for the construction of pressure instruments.

Firemen Plan Concession Stand

Plans for a concession stand at the Cumberland Fair during the week of August 18 were made Thursday by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company.

Daniel Fradiska will be chairman of the stand and firemen will be scheduled to work the stand with eight men needed.

Meetings of the fire company for August 28 and September 4 have been cancelled. On September 11 the firemen will hold a hamburg and wiener roast with members of the auxiliary as guests.

The fire company will take part in the parade at Corriganville on August 15 and in Keyser on August 24.

The Ladies Auxiliary reported on the blacktopping of the parking lot at the fire hall. The work cost $1,400 and was paid for by the Auxiliary, according to Mrs. Mary Settle, president.

Knowledge Volume And Specialization

"The sum total of human knowledge is increasing at an appalling rate," says the manufacturing director of a large pharmaceutical house. "It will double in the next eight years."

The day of the so-called "Renaissance Man" is obviously over. That was when a Da Vinci or a Goethe could excel in a number of different fields. This is the day of the specialist. And even he has his troubles.

Ninety per cent of all the scientists who ever lived are living today. But so rapidly is human knowledge exploding that it requires thousands of scientific journals to keep them up to date on developments in their own specialized fields.

Obviously, this calls for greater specialization. And even then the problem of keeping abreast of the latest findings is staggering.

Much of the new knowledge in the thousands of scientific journals, of course, is summarized and condensed into so-called "abstract" journals. But the number of these is growing so rapidly there is now talk of abstract journals that abstract the abstract journals.

Of the many ways this affects all of us in our daily lives, one example will suffice. It signals the end of the kindly family doctor who was, at his best, a combination physician-psychiatrist-counselor. Within the memory of many living persons the eye-ear-nose-and-throat specialist represented the very latest in advanced medical therapy. Today it is the eye specialist alone. Tomorrow it may very well be a question of which eye.

Men once smiled at the story of the specialist who continued to learn more and more in an ever-narrowing field of knowledge until one day he knew everything there was to know about nothing.

Now many are not sure that a smile was in order.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Getting Too Far Off Base

Although I happen to believe that the Communists are trying to horn in on the agitation for civil rights for Negroes, I agree with those who think the issue of Commy intrusion is something of a red herring. Rights are rights, and they should be discussed on their own merits in relation to the U.S. Constitution without worrying unduly because the Communists happen to be paying lip service to them. However, there is something that is really muddying the waters as Negro organizations gird themselves for the big August 28 march on Washington, D. C.

That "something" is the emergence of "kook," or illiterate, economics, in the demands which the Negroes propose to take to Washington with them. According to the Negro organizations' March Order manual, the projected business of the coming August 28 demonstration quite transcends the problem of constitutional rights. The Negroes understandably insist on such items as desegregation of public schools, the right to non-discriminatory public employment, and the right to unmolested use of the ballot. But when such demands as the ones for a "right" to massive federal public works programs, and for a minimum wage of $2 an hour appear on the list for an August 28 presentation, the Negroes themselves are entitled to look closely for hoodwinkers among them.

The truth is that there can be no such thing as a "right" to public works employment or a minimum wage. These things must come within the capacity of an economic system to supply them. They come under the heading of prudential legislation. In a poor, struggling economy, such as the one that pertains in the Cumberland and Ozark plateaus or the back country of Mississippi, the attempt to compel all employers to pay a minimum wage of $2 an hour would lead to many bankruptcies and the wholesale disappearance of jobs.

The attempt to transfer to a federal public works project anyone who cannot earn $2 an hour at a profit to his employer must have its repercussions on the Gross National Product on the one hand, and the government's ability to finance itself through taxation on the other. Keynesian intricacies of a subtle and baffling nature obtrude.

Even in prosperous regions of the North and East the employment situation is not at all simple. There must be thousands of Negro wives, for example, who supplement the family income by doing domestic work. The going wage for such employment in my neck of the woods is around $10 a day. This, for a rather common six-hour day, comes to a little less than $1.70 an hour. The attempt to add thirty cents more to the hourly wage by legal compulsion, piled on top of such things as employer assumption of social security and the provision of daily lunch and transportation, might be just too much for many employers of domestics to assume. The Negro is entitled, therefore, to question even the practical wisdom of his leaders in mixing a high minimum wage demand with the August 28 demonstration in behalf of rights of a constitutional nature. Anything that will serve to decrease the total amount of work available to him could be prudentially bad.

The intrusion of public works and minimum wage demands into the August 28 picture is the real red herring. Such demands have nothing whatsoever to do with the legal rights of minorities as such. If the Negro organizations insist on dragging strictly prudential economic matters into their current fight for "equal protection of the laws," they run the risk of confusing racial issues with class war agitation. This is something the Communists would very much like to see happen.

The Communists hope to enlist the Negroes as a fighting arm of a Marxist "proletariat." To hell, they say, with the hopes of a Negro middle class. But do the Negroes want this? How will it help their struggle for rights?

The trouble with the projected August 28 demonstration is that it has become subject to seizure by Millenialists who want Utopia tomorrow. I'd like a $2 minimum wage, too. Not for myself, but for my 18-year-old son who is working for a landscaping company this summer at $1.35 an hour. He's earning money for college. The only drawback to trying to force his employer to pay him $2 an hour is that he'd be fired. The Gross National Product would shrink, my college bills would go up, and whose rights would be improved?

The Test Ban Treaty And The Harriman Balloon

By Richard L. Madden

NEW YORK

The recently-signed treaty to stop nuclear testing in the atmosphere has already started some fallout in New York politics.

The trial balloons are going up, all carrying the banner of Averell Harriman, the man who led the American negotiating team, for United States Senator.

Mr. Harriman, a former New York Governor who now wears the title of Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs, has not exactly gone out of his way to deflate the balloons.

In fact, the tall, lean, sometimes sad-faced Mr. Harriman has been having some fun over the idea. He is not known for his levity in public speeches, but in talking about the possibility of running for the Senate, he says: "The only people who are worrying about whether I'm going to run are Republicans."

Of course, he disclaims any "immediate plans" to run for elective office, but that's standard procedure for anyone who might have such plans.

There are many reasons why President Kennedy might like to have Mr. Harriman campaigning in New York state for the Senate next year at the same time the President would be running for re-election.

The White House undoubtedly would enjoy seeing Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, who faces re-election again next year, move back to Rochester from Washington.

The Kennedy administration hasn't forgotten the wounds inflicted during the Cuban crisis by Sen. Keating, who blossomed into national prominence as an expert on Cuba.

Mr. Harriman, armed with the credentials of a man who helped negotiate a treaty which could lead to an easing in cold war tensions, could be a potent antidote against Sen. Keating—whom the Democrats have accused of fanning cold war flames over Cuba.

Mr. Kennedy picked up New Yorks' prize 45 electoral votes in 1960 by the relatively slim margin of 383,666 votes out of nearly 7.2 million cast. He naturally would want the strongest possible help on the Democratic state ticket in 1964, particularly if Gov. Rockefeller somehow should be his Republican rival for the Presidency.

To be sure, Mr. Rockefeller beat Mr. Harriman and won New York's Governorship in 1958 by a margin of 573,000 votes. But since then, Mr. Harriman's star seems to have risen while Gov. Rockefeller's has waned.

Mr. Harriman might also be the happy solution for the not-always-united New York Democrats who will be faced with the problem of nominating someone for the Senate. The logical candidates at the moment—or at last the ones mentioned most often—are New City's Mayor Wagner and Samuel Stratton, a Schenectady Congressman.

Mr. Stratton, who seems to have the knack of winning in normally Republican areas, clearly has his eyes on the Senatorial nomination. Mr. Wagner hasn't said yes, but he hasn't said no either, on whether he would like to go to the Senate where his father, the late Sen. Robert Wagner, served.

But each has some liabilities. Mr. Stratton, for example, is not too well known in New York City. Mr. Wagner's strongest support is in the city and not upstate. Mr. Harriman seems to have state-wide support.

At 71 and an adept hand in the field of diplomacy, which he appears to enjoy, Mr. Harriman may not want to get back into New York's political wars.

But in the meantime, he is basking in the national limelight generated by the test ban treaty. He is a willing candidate for interviews and has scheduled a number of stops on the chicken-and-peas dinner speaking circuit. Mr. Harriman may not speculate on future plans, but others are.

And the white-maned Sen. Keating may have been a little too prophetic back in April when he introduced Mr. Harriman before a Senate committee. With an assist from Shakespeare, the Senator turned to Mr. Harriman and said:

Age cannot wither him nor custom stale
His infinite variety.

MOURNFUL REMINDER — Charles E. Halleck, the House Republican leader from Indiana, is ruefully sporting a new trophy, gift of his Hoosier congressional colleagues. It is a handsome, stuffed mourning dove. It has gray eyes and the stand it's on bears a plaque that reads: "Don't shoot, Charlie."

A short while ago Halleck was acquitted on charges that he and some friends hunted in a North Carolina field illegally baited with grain.

In a spirit of fun, which we suspect Halleck doesn't fully share, his colleagues got the trophy from a taxidermist and had it properly inscribed. The plaque reads: "Authentic North Carolina Mourning Dove (In Baited Habitat). From Your Fellow Sportsmen and Nature Lovers."

The dove is mounted on a stump with kernels of corn underneath. For a long time to come, we expect that Charlie will look at that bird, and lay his shooting iron down.

Europeans Will Be Watching Test Ban Developments With Great Interest

By Drew Pearson

ATHENS—The people of Southern Europe, especially our old ally Greece, are tremendously interested in the "big thaw." They are wondering whether the USA and the USSR will really end the cold war.

In 1959, after President Eisenhower had started an earlier thaw with Nikita Khrushchev at Camp David, I lunched with Premier Constantine Caramanlis at the Astir Beach Pavilion which Congressman Adam Clayton Powell and his two female assistants made famous on last summer's junket to Europe.

"First you want us to fight the Russians," said the Prime Minister of Greece, "now you want us to kiss the Russians. Which are we to do?"

The U-2 flight over Russia and the break-up of the summit conference in Paris soon told the Greeks that they were not to kiss the Russians. The cold war was still on. So now they want to know whether there will be a reversal of Kennedy's kiss-and-make-up policy with Moscow.

In other words, there is tremendous interest among our friends, our allies, and even our non-friends as to whether the Senate will ratify the test-ban treaty.

Disbelievers In Peace

As I left the United States, a succession of harpies, harbingers of failure, cloud-sitters, preventive-war pundits, and organized disbelievers in peace was starting a campaign to undermine Senate confirmation of Kennedy's first cautious step toward peace. They were:

HARPIES—One of the loudest to sound off was Congresswoman Frances Bolton of the Cleveland suburbs, a Republican lady of wealth, charm, and determination, who has done some fine things for the nation's capital in trying to preserve the view across the Potomac from Mount Vernon, but who saw Communists under every bed on a trip to Hawaii, and wants to keep the world in a state of suspended animation between peace and war. "I wouldn't trust Russia to keep an agreement and I wouldn't trust Kennedy's word either," Mrs. Bolton told a Republican women's luncheon ever before the ink was dry on the test-ban treaty.

HARBINGERS OF FAILURE were led by Richard M. Nixon, who criticized the test-ban treaty from Berlin, accused Kennedy of "woolly thinking" in believing the treaty would relax the cold war, and urged that we should "insist on freedom for the peoples on whom Communist dictatorships have been imposed against their will . . . The United States should use all its power to get some aid for these oppressed peoples."

When Nixon was Vice President, however, he took a triumphal tour through Russia, told the Russian people how he and Eisenhower wanted friendship with the Russian people, even apologized to Khrushchev because Congress had passed a Captive Nations Week resolution urging aid for the satellite nations.

CLOUD-SITTERS were led by Sen. "Scoop" Jackson, the handsome boy wonder from Washington State, and a Democrat who poured cold water on the test-ban talks, said it would be "utterly unrealistic" to believe a test-ban agreement would stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

PREVENTIVE-WAR PUNDITS were led by Dr. Edward Teller, who came to Washington for a breakfast with Congressmen to warn them in advance against a test-ban treaty.

Dr. Teller is a distinguished and convincing scientist, but not entirely without prejudice. It was revealed during the Senate debate on Admiral Lewis Strauss that Teller was being paid by big defense contractors at the rate of $1,000 a day, that he had received $20,000 so far that year, that his biggest client was General Dynamics, one of the top defense contractors of the nation.

ORGANIZED DISBELIEVERS IN PEACE were led by the National Strategy Committee, whose leaders include Loyd Wright, the right-wing Los Angeles lawyer whose security report for Eisenhower was so far to the right it was junked; Admiral Ben Morrell, an indefatigable and indiscriminate flag-waver; Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, Admiral Chester Ward, and various professional and semi-professional patrioteers.

Just as Averell Harriman was beginning his delicate negotiations, this outfit sent all members of Congress a report aimed at cutting the ground from under the Kennedy policy of restoring confidence between Russia and the United States.

This policy, as outlined by Secretary of State Rusk to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on March 11, is:

"What we need are arrangements on which confidence can be built as a matter wholly separate from the question of whether the Russians will trust us or we can trust the Russians, because the very arrangements themselves provide a basis for growing confidence."

President Kennedy, in his TV report to the nation on the test-ban treaty, made it clear that the treaty was a joint step by the two most powerful nations in the world to build for future confidence and peace. The disbelievers in peace carefully wrote every member of Congress to try to pull the rug out from under this important step.

The people of Europe will be watching intently to see whether their efforts succeed.

Global Movie-Making

By Carl Foreman

LONDON

There were giants in those days—and this is not the start of another Biblical epic. I am speaking of the days of Clark Gable and Ronald Colman and Gary Cooper, when their names on any movie marquee from Transylvania to Tristan da Cunha would have had the locals lining up with handfuls of money or garden produce or what ever it took for two hours of Hollywood enchantment.

I say there were giants in those days because the lingering legends prove it, the dominance which Hollywood-made movies and Hollywood-created stars held over the entire filmgoing world prove it, and, even more conclusively, the balance sheets of the industry prove it.

I picked the names above at random as they popped up in the memory, but perhaps it is symbolic of something that all three are gone. Some of the giants still walk among us, of course, although their number grows fewer with the years and their minimum salaries and percentages for making a picture correspondingly escalate — a word I borrow without apology from the lexicon of world strategists.

You can take this to mean that given the right stars, the right subject, the right budget, and with everyone else falling into place, you can still make a big film in Hollywood that, as in the days of Jean Harlow and Marlene Dietrich, could hardly fail to stun the box office everywhere.

But the era of the sure money-making film is, alas, gone. The trouble is that the plots are not easy to find, the stars you must have for insurance are not numerous and are in ferocious demand, and financiers blench at the overall cost, and there are apt to be other difficulties as you go along. So we producers of today must do with guile what our great predecessors could accomplish simply by opening the floodgates of their reservoirs of star talent.

We have to take into account national situations which never ruffled a Hollywood brow before the war. We have, in fact, to worry about a world setup in which only 45 per cent of our income will come from the United States and 55 per cent from other countries whose moviegoers have firm ideas of the stars they will pay their money to see.

Very often these stars are their own countrymen and their own countrywomen. You cannot ignore this, if you are making films for the international market, any more than you can ignore what Samuel Bronston calls the "geography" of a picture.

Americans, and practically everybody else, travel these days to Paris, to Rome, to London, to Madrid and other capitals and a lot of places in between. You can no longer establish Paris with a shot of the Eiffel Tower or London with a glimpse of Big Ben and assume your audience will thereafter imagine themselves in Paris or London. They've been there. They are often looking beyond your stars at the background.

Your film is going to be shown in Paris and London. And the critics — whatever they may forgive in a modestly-budgeted film —will come stomping down with hob-nailed boots if you are trying to convince them that a backlot somewhere is the land they live in and are prepared to defend to the last wounding adjective.

As for the international aspect of the movie box office — the Oscars awarded Sophia Loren and Maximilian Schell were the first recognition of this, though they will not be the last. Having just moved small armies of actors and technicians around Europe for "The Victors," I have a feeling it must have been easier in the old days both in logistics and casting. I had to think of France (Jeanne Moreau), Germany (Romy Schneider), Italy (Rosanna Schiaffino), and Melina Mercouri (who is Greek but a world star) along with my American cast — Vince Edwards, George Hamilton, George Peppard, and Eli Wallach among them.

Problems Of Changing Family Life In Japan

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The Japanese, following World War II, developed several psychiatric problems in shifting from the traditional familism and authoritarian way of life to individualism and democracy. In addition, a greater rift than usual exists between younger and older generations as a result of economic changes.

According to a report in the Medical Tribune, wives no longer are submissive to their husbands, teachers have lost authority over children, divorce rates are going up, and juvenile delinquency is on the increase. The incidence of suicide continues to be high and ranks first or second among certain age groups of the younger generation. Psychiatrists have a special problem because the Japanese cling to the belief that mental diseases are hereditary, hence incurable.

Some people use poor judgment when grocery shopping. They unscrew caps on food jars, sometimes taste the food, and return them to the shelves. The item is now contaminated. This is serious when the jar contains baby food.

The Committee on Nutrition of the American Academy of Pediatrics urges mothers to observe the warning instructions on caps of baby food jars. One cap has a flexible button that pops up when the lid has been unscrewed. Another has parallel lines that become discontinuous when the cap is turned.

A new disease has been discovered among children — eraserophagia. Two West Virginia radiologists X-rayed the abdomen of an 8-year-old and the film showed "numerous discrete opacities widely scattered throughout the colon." Close questioning of the girl revealed she was in the habit of nibbling on erasers as she sat in class. They were too opaque to cast a shadow under the X-ray and showed up as white spots.

A 12-year-old boy manifested the same condition. The physicians, not to be outdone, then swallowed some bits of erasers. But only those containing a harmless substance, lithophone, appeared on the X-rays as white spots.

DISPLACED DISK MATERIAL

H. H. writes: Is a hernia of the spinal disk the same as a slipped disk?

REPLY

Yes. In the strict sense, the disk itself does not slip but its inner soft material herniates or protrudes through the edge of the disk and presses upon the spinal cord or a nerve. The cause of this condition is weakness or degeneration of the edge of a disk.

INFLAMED THYROID

S. C. writes: I'm 50 years old and have been suffering from thyroiditis for six months. Cortisone and hormones have not helped. How long does this disorder usually last?

REPLY

Thyroiditis is difficult to correct. Other treatments include thyroid extract, X-ray therapy, and surgery, depending upon the nature of the infection.

TOO MANY CHROMOSOMES

S. L. writes: Would a chromosome test determine accurately whether an infant is a mongoloid? This is a borderline case.

REPLY

Yes. Most mongoloid babies have 47 (instead of 46) chromosomes. Tests of this type usually are made on cells removed from the mouth or skin.

BREATH HOLDING

R. L. writes: Will holding the breath put a strain on the heart?

REPLY

Yes, especially when done forcibly. Holding the breath tends to block the flow of blood that enters the heart.

URINARY TRACT INFECTION

D. C. writes: Does cystitis affect the entire urinary tract?

REPLY

No, just the bladder. But the infection may spread to the kidneys or to the small tube leading to the outside (urethra).

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Knowledge Volume And Specialization

"The sum total of human knowledge is increasing at an appalling rate," says the manufacturing director of a large pharmaceutical house. "It will double in the next eight years."

The day of the so-called "Renaissance Man" is obviously over. That was when a Da Vinci or a Goethe could excel in a number of different fields. This is the day of the specialist. And even he has his troubles.

Ninety per cent of all the scientists who ever lived are living today. But so rapidly is human knowledge exploding that it requires thousands of scientific journals to keep them up to date on developments in their own specialized fields.

Obviously, this calls for greater specialization. And even then the problem of keeping abreast of the latest findings is staggering.

Much of the new knowledge in the thousands of scientific journals, of course, is summarized and condensed into so-called "abstract" journals. But the number of these is growing so rapidly there is now talk of abstract journals that abstract the abstract journals.

Of the many ways this affects all of us in our daily lives, one example will suffice. It signals the end of the kindly family doctor who was, at his best, a combination physician-psychiatrist-counselor. Within the memory of many living persons the eye-ear-nose-and-throat specialist represented the very latest in advanced medical therapy. Today it is the eye specialist alone. Tomorrow it may very well be a question of which eye.

Men once smiled at the story of the specialist who continued to learn more and more in an ever-narrowing field of knowledge until one day he knew everything there was to know about nothing.

Now many are not sure that a smile was in order.

These Days

Getting Too Far Off Base

Although I happen to believe that the Communists are trying to horn in on the agitation for civil rights for Negroes, I agree with those who think the issue of Commy intrusion is something of a red herring. Rights are rights, and they should be discussed on their own merits in relation to the U.S. Constitution without worrying unduly because the Communists happen to be paying lip service to them. However, there is something that is really muddying the waters as Negro organizations gird themselves for the big August 28 march on Washington, D. C.

That "something" is the emergence of "kook," or illiterate, economics, in the demands which the Negroes propose to take to Washington with them. According to the Negro organizations' March Order manual, the projected business of the coming August 28 demonstration quite transcends the problem of constitutional rights. The Negroes understandably insist on such items as desegregation of public schools, the right to non-discriminatory public employment, and the right to unmolested use of the ballot. But when such demands as the ones for a "right" to massive federal public works programs, and for a minimum wage of $2 an hour appear on the list for an August 28 presentation, the Negroes themselves are entitled to look closely for hoodwinkers among them.

The truth is that there can be no such thing as a "right" to public works employment or a minimum wage. These things must come within the capacity of an economic system to supply them. They come under the heading of prudential legislation. In a poor, struggling economy, such as the one that pertains in the Cumberland and Ozark plateaus or the back country of Mississippi, the attempt to compel all employers to pay a minimum wage of $2 an hour would lead to many bankruptcies and the wholesale disappearance of jobs.

The attempt to transfer to a federal public works project anyone who cannot earn $2 an hour at a profit to his employer must have its repercussions on the Gross National Product on the one hand, and the government's ability to finance itself through taxation on the other. Keynesian intricacies of a subtle and baffling nature obtrude.

Even in prosperous regions of the North and East the employment situation is not at all simple. There must be thousands of Negro wives, for example, who supplement the family income by doing domestic work. The going wage for such employment in my neck of the woods is around $10 a day. This, for a rather common six-hour day, comes to a little less than $1.70 an hour. The attempt to add thirty cents more to the hourly wage by legal compulsion, piled on top of such things as employer assumption of social security and the provision of daily lunch and transportation, might be just too much for many employers of domestics to assume. The Negro is entitled, therefore, to question even the practical wisdom of his leaders in mixing a high minimum wage demand with the August 28 demonstration in behalf of rights of a constitutional nature. Anything that will serve to decrease the total amount of work available to him could be prudentially bad.

The intrusion of public works and minimum wage demands into the August 28 picture is the real red herring. Such demands have nothing whatsoever to do with the legal rights of minorities as such. If the Negro organizations insist on dragging strictly prudential economic matters into their current fight for "equal protection of the laws," they run the risk of confusing racial issues with class war agitation. This is something the Communists would very much like to see happen.

The Communists hope to enlist the Negroes as a fighting arm of a Marxist "proletariat." To hell, they say, with the hopes of a Negro middle class. But do the Negroes want this? How will it help their struggle for rights?

The trouble with the projected August 28 demonstration is that it has become subject to seizure by Millenialists who want Utopia tomorrow. I'd like a $2 minimum wage, too. Not for myself, but for my 18-year-old son who is working for a landscaping company this summer at $1.35 an hour. He's earning money for college. The only drawback to trying to force his employer to pay him $2 an hour is that he'd be fired. The Gross National Product would shrink, my college bills would go up, and whose rights would be improved?

The Test Ban Treaty And The Harriman Balloon

By Richard L. Madden

NEW YORK

The recently-signed treaty to stop nuclear testing in the atmosphere has already started some fallout in New York politics.

The trial balloons are going up, all carrying the banner of Averell Harriman, the man who led the American negotiating team, for United States Senator.

Mr. Harriman, a former New York Governor who now wears the title of Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs, has not exactly gone out of his way to deflate the balloons.

In fact, the tall, lean, sometimes sad-faced Mr. Harriman has been having some fun over the idea. He is not known for his levity in public speeches, but in talking about the possibility of running for the Senate, he says: "The only people who are worrying about whether I'm going to run are Republicans."

TOO MANY CHROMOSOMES

S. L. writes: Would a chromosome test determine accurately whether an infant is a mongoloid? This is a borderline case.

REPLY

Yes. Most mongoloid babies have 47 (instead of 46) chromosomes. Tests of this type usually are made on cells removed from the mouth or skin.

BREATH HOLDING

R. L. writes: Will holding the breath put a strain on the heart?

REPLY

Yes, especially when done forcibly. Holding the breath tends to block the flow of blood that enters the heart.

URINARY TRACT INFECTION

D. C. writes: Does cystitis affect the entire urinary tract?

REPLY

No, just the bladder. But the infection may spread to the kidneys or to the small tube leading to the outside (urethra).

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Europeans Will Be Watching Test Ban Developments With Great Interest

By Drew Pearson

ATHENS—The people of Southern Europe, especially our old ally Greece, are tremendously interested in the "big thaw." They are wondering whether the USA and the USSR will really end the cold war.

In 1959, after President Eisenhower had started an earlier thaw with Nikita Khrushchev at Camp David, I lunched with Premier Constantine Caramanlis at the Astir Beach Pavilion which Congressman Adam Clayton Powell and his two female assistants made famous on last summer's junket to Europe.

"First you want us to fight the Russians," said the Prime Minister of Greece, "now you want us to kiss the Russians. Which are we to do?"

The U-2 flight over Russia and the break-up of the summit conference in Paris soon told the Greeks that they were not to kiss the Russians. The cold war was still on. So now they want to know whether there will be a reversal of Kennedy's kiss-and-make-up policy with Moscow.

In other words, there is tremendous interest among our friends, our allies, and even our non-friends as to whether the Senate will ratify the test-ban treaty.

Disbelievers In Peace

As I left the United States, a succession of harpies, harbingers of failure, cloud-sitters, preventive-war pundits, and organized disbelievers in peace was starting a campaign to undermine Senate confirmation of Kennedy's first cautious step toward peace. They were:

HARPIES—One of the loudest to sound off was Congresswoman Frances Bolton of the Cleveland suburbs, a Republican lady of wealth, charm, and determination, who has done some fine things for the nation's capital in trying to preserve the view across the Potomac from Mount Vernon, but who saw Communists under every bed on a trip to Hawaii, and wants to keep the world in a state of suspended animation between peace and war. "I wouldn't trust Russia to keep an agreement and I wouldn't trust Kennedy's word either," Mrs. Bolton told a Republican women's luncheon ever before the ink was dry on the test-ban treaty.

HARBINGERS OF FAILURE were led by Richard M. Nixon, who criticized the test-ban treaty from Berlin, accused Kennedy of "woolly thinking" in believing the treaty would relax the cold war, and urged that we should "insist on freedom for the peoples on whom Communist dictatorships have been imposed against their will . . . The United States should use all its power to get some aid for these oppressed peoples."

When Nixon was Vice President, however, he took a triumphal tour through Russia, told the Russian people how he and Eisenhower wanted friendship with the Russian people, even apologized to Khrushchev because Congress had passed a Captive Nations Week resolution urging aid for the satellite nations.

CLOUD-SITTERS were led by Sen. "Scoop" Jackson, the handsome boy wonder from Washington State, and a Democrat who poured cold water on the test-ban talks, said it would be "utterly unrealistic" to believe a test-ban agreement would stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

PREVENTIVE-WAR PUNDITS were led by Dr. Edward Teller, who came to Washington for a breakfast with Congressmen to warn them in advance against a test-ban treaty.

Dr. Teller is a distinguished and convincing scientist, but not entirely without prejudice. It was revealed during the Senate debate on Admiral Lewis Strauss that Teller was being paid by big defense contractors at the rate of $1,000 a day, that he had received $20,000 so far that year, that his biggest client was General Dynamics, one of the top defense contractors of the nation.

ORGANIZED DISBELIEVERS IN PEACE were led by the National Strategy Committee, whose leaders include Loyd Wright, the right-wing Los Angeles lawyer whose security report for Eisenhower was so far to the right it was junked; Admiral Ben Morrell, an indefatigable and indiscriminate flag-waver; Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, Admiral Chester Ward, and various professional and semi-professional patrioteers.

Just as Averell Harriman was beginning his delicate negotiations, this outfit sent all members of Congress a report aimed at cutting the ground from under the Kennedy policy of restoring confidence between Russia and the United States.

This policy, as outlined by Secretary of State Rusk to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on March 11, is:

"What we need are arrangements on which confidence can be built as a matter wholly separate from the question of whether the Russians will trust us or we can trust the Russians, because the very arrangements themselves provide a basis for growing confidence."

President Kennedy, in his TV report to the nation on the test-ban treaty, made it clear that the treaty was a joint step by the two most powerful nations in the world to build for future confidence and peace. The disbelievers in peace carefully wrote every member of Congress to try to pull the rug out from under this important step.

The people of Europe will be watching intently to see whether their efforts succeed.

Global Movie-Making

By Carl Foreman

LONDON

There were giants in those days—and this is not the start of another Biblical epic. I am speaking of the days of Clark Gable and Ronald Colman and Gary Cooper, when their names on any movie marquee from Transylvania to Tristan da Cunha would have had the locals lining up with handfuls of money or garden produce or what ever it took for two hours of Hollywood enchantment.

I say there were giants in those days because the lingering legends prove it, the dominance which Hollywood-made movies and Hollywood-created stars held over the entire filmgoing world prove it, and, even more conclusively, the balance sheets of the industry prove it.

I picked the names above at random as they popped up in the memory, but perhaps it is symbolic of something that all three are gone. Some of the giants still walk among us, of course, although their number grows fewer with the years and their minimum salaries and percentages for making a picture correspondingly escalate — a word I borrow without apology from the lexicon of world strategists.

You can take this to mean that given the right stars, the right subject, the right budget, and with everyone else falling into place, you can still make a big film in Hollywood that, as in the days of Jean Harlow and Marlene Dietrich, could hardly fail to stun the box office everywhere.

But the era of the sure money-making film is, alas, gone. The trouble is that the plots are not easy to find, the stars you must have for insurance are not numerous and are in ferocious demand, and financiers blench at the overall cost, and there are apt to be other difficulties as you go along. So we producers of today must do with guile what our great predecessors could accomplish simply by opening the floodgates of their reservoirs of star talent.

We have to take into account national situations which never ruffled a Hollywood brow before the war. We have, in fact, to worry about a world setup in which only 45 per cent of our income will come from the United States and 55 per cent from other countries whose moviegoers have firm ideas of the stars they will pay their money to see.

Very often these stars are their own countrymen and their own countrywomen. You cannot ignore this, if you are making films for the international market, any more than you can ignore what Samuel Bronston calls the "geography" of a picture.

Americans, and practically everybody else, travel these days to Paris, to Rome, to London, to Madrid and other capitals and a lot of places in between. You can no longer establish Paris with a shot of the Eiffel Tower or London with a glimpse of Big Ben and assume your audience will thereafter imagine themselves in Paris or London. They've been there. They are often looking beyond your stars at the background.

Your film is going to be shown in Paris and London. And the critics — whatever they may forgive in a modestly-budgeted film —will come stomping down with hob-nailed boots if you are trying to convince them that a backlot somewhere is the land they live in and are prepared to defend to the last wounding adjective.

As for the international aspect of the movie box office — the Oscars awarded Sophia Loren and Maximilian Schell were the first recognition of this, though they will not be the last. Having just moved small armies of actors and technicians around Europe for "The Victors," I have a feeling it must have been easier in the old days both in logistics and casting. I had to think of France (Jeanne Moreau), Germany (Romy Schneider), Italy (Rosanna Schiaffino), and Melina Mercouri (who is Greek but a world star) along with my American cast — Vince Edwards, George Hamilton, George Peppard, and Eli Wallach among them.

WILLIAM M. KENNEY

Frostburg State Junior Completes Summer Course In Marine Biology

FROSTBURG — William M. Kenney, an advanced junior at Frostburg State College and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenney, Eckhart, has returned home after taking a six weeks course in "marine biology" at the University of Miami.

Participation in the course required the reccomendation of his college instructors and he was the only undergraduate student in the group. A number were graduates of this year. There were also several in the class with doctor's degrees.

Young Kenney said that he was worried that his science background would not be sufficient to compete with other members. When final grades came out he placed third in the class of 29.

During the six weeks the class received instruction at the university as well as traveling to the Bahama Islands, Puerto Rico and Caribbean islands.

While the group studied they made collections of sea life and shells, at times scuba diving 30 to 40 feet into the water to secure their specimens.

Kenney has collected many different shells and coral. He brought back with him also live specimens which he will use in his project at Frostburg State this fall. His project is "Salt Water Aquarium" which will enable teachers to have live salt water specimens in their laboratories and class rooms.

At the conclusion of the summer course, Kenney was elected to membership in the "International Oceanographic Foundation" by virtue of contributions to the advancement and extension of knowledge and discovery in ocean and marine sciences.

Kenney said that if all goes well he plans on attending the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, La Jolla, California, next summer. Following the completion of the work for his bachelor of science degree at Frostburg State he plans to continue work towards his master.

West Virginia University Hospital Marks Birthday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University Hospital, which will observe its third birthday Saturday, looks on the family doctor as the key to the institution's growth and development.

Director E. L. Staples called the institution a "referral center...oriented both to the academic programs of training physicians and nurses and other allied health personnel—and to the service function of care of patients based on a dollars-and-cents arrangement."

Noting that the hospital now has 520 beds and has served 25,358 patients since it was opened, Stables attributed the hospital's rapid development to:

—Recruitment and attraction to Morgantown of a competent staff of clinical physicians and administrative and technical personnel from all parts of the country.

—Availability of the specific kinds of clinical patients to come to this special type of a university-oriented hospital.

—Willingness of the state's physicians to send their patients to University Hospital.

Turning to the specific services of the hospital, Staples noted one of the most important is surgery —especially neuro-surgery.

The hospital has 15 full-time surgeons, 15 clinical associates and 19 residents in surgery and has performed over 6,000 operations.

Because there are very few in West Virginia, the busiest group of specialists have been neuro-surgeons.

Many accident cases involving damage to the skull are now being brought to the hospital from northern and central West Virginia, Staples added.

Other delicate surgical operations performed frequently at the hospital include "open heart" surgery, closed heart surgery and the inserting of tiny electronic machines inside the bodies of older persons to make sure their hearts beat at a regular rate.

The tiny transistors and mercury batteries in these machines, called pacemakers, are of a type first used for space satellites.

Other important aspects of the hospital's operation are the Clinical Center for Metabolic Studies, the Social Service Department and the concept of "total care."

The metabolism center, made possible by a five-year grant from the National Institutes of Health of the U.S. Public Health Service, is concerned with the substances taken in and discharged by the body and the secrets of how glands work.

This service is particularly important to patients who can't afford the long period of hospitalization needed to get meaningful results in their cases. The costs of hospitalization in such cases are paid through the grant.

The social Service Department is charged with helping patients after they are discharged.

The concept of "total care" means that all personnel, facilities and equipment are made available at the hospital for the complete diagnosis of all medical problems, with subsequent treatment.

Insurance Costs To Be Probed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron said the West Virginia Armory Board would investigate the cost of premiums for insurance on the Beckley National Guard Armory and "take the necessary action" if the review shows the state would save under a blanket policy with Royal Indemnity Co.

Barron and State Auditor Denzil L. Gainer, both members of the board, called for the investigation. Secretary of State Joe Burdett is the third member of the board.

The governor said he had been informed that there would have been no saving by insuring the Armory under a blanket with Royal, a national concern.

However, he said the board would review the awarding to the policy in 1962 to Raleigh Insurance Agency Inc., headed by State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack A. Nuckols.

Raleigh Insurance, in turn, let Diversified Fire and Casualty Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of an all-West Virginia firm, Diversified Mountaineer Corp. cover the $1.3 million building. Burdett is a director and vice president of Diversified Fire and Casualty and a director and officer of Diversified Mountaineer.

Royal Indemnity insures 25 state armories and 29 other board properties.

Rescue Teams Strive To Open Closed Mine

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI)—Rescue teams continued efforts Friday to get Eastern Associated Coal Corp.'s nearby Grant Town mine back into operation.

The mine has been closed since a fire last Christmas.

Three rescue teams, all from the Grant Town mine, entered the pit after a 10-man inspection team composed of state, federal and company officials inspected the mine for four hours Thursday night.

The rescue workers started erecting temporary stoppings to prevent air from reaching areas where the fire began. The "air-locking" operation will supply the teams with fresh air as they work their way toward the original fire section two miles from the entrance.

Kiwanians Hear Report On Veterinary Medicine

KEYSER—Thomas From, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, who is now practicing his profession here as well as throughout the South Branch Valley, was guest speaker during the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Rosemont Restaurant.

Dr. From gave the Kiwanians a report on various phases of his profession, explaining the number of cases treated, nature of various cases, increasing interest among citizens of the area, and some of his plans and hopes for the future.

He pointed out that most veterinarians are not used to the fullest extent . . . they have good public health training and strive to promote good health among animals, constantly detetrtmining if dogs should be around human beings and whethter or not their diseases are communicable to people.

Dr. From stated there are only 19 colleges of veterinary medicine in North America and those who engage in private businesses are always eager to present the best equipment and as proficient service as is available in other medical fields.

He said he would like to see the day when Keyser could boast of a modern hospital, with new equipment, because a veterinary clinic tends to attract new people to a community, thus bringing in new business and increasing civic pride.

He said that at the local clinic he and his assistants do all types of surgery, repair fractures, remove spleens, kidney stones, and gall bladders. He says they strive to conduct a complete, efficient, and proficient institution and that many "vets" are hopeful that some day there will be blood banks to proved needed blood for dogs, cats, horses, and cows. He said that in the past year he has done about 35 infusions at the local clinic.

Guests at the meeting were Garland Easterly and Rev. Robert Cook. W. E. Michael gave a report from the float committee and a board meeting followed.

Frostburg State Junior Completes Summer Course In Marine Biology

FROSTBURG — William M. Kenney, an advanced junior at Frostburg State College and son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kenney, Eckhart, has returned home after taking a six weeks course in "marine biology" at the University of Miami.

Participation in the course required the reccomendation of his college instructors and he was the only undergraduate student in the group. A number were graduates of this year. There were also several in the class with doctor's degrees.

Young Kenney said that he was worried that his science background would not be sufficient to compete with other members. When final grades came out he placed third in the class of 29.

During the six weeks the class received instruction at the university as well as traveling to the Bahama Islands, Puerto Rico and Caribbean islands.

While the group studied they made collections of sea life and shells, at times scuba diving 30 to 40 feet into the water to secure their specimens.

Kenney has collected many different shells and coral. He brought back with him also live specimens which he will use in his project at Frostburg State this fall. His project is "Salt Water Aquarium" which will enable teachers to have live salt water specimens in their laboratories and class rooms.

At the conclusion of the summer course, Kenney was elected to membership in the "International Oceanographic Foundation" by virtue of contributions to the advancement and extension of knowledge and discovery in ocean and marine sciences.

Kenney said that if all goes well he plans on attending the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, La Jolla, California, next summer. Following the completion of the work for his bachelor of science degree at Frostburg State he plans to continue work towards his master.

Insurance Costs To Be Probed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron said the West Virginia Armory Board would investigate the cost of premiums for insurance on the Beckley National Guard Armory and "take the necessary action" if the review shows the state would save under a blanket policy with Royal Indemnity Co.

Barron and State Auditor Denzil L. Gainer, both members of the board, called for the investigation. Secretary of State Joe Burdett is the third member of the board.

The governor said he had been informed that there would have been no saving by insuring the Armory under a blanket with Royal, a national concern.

However, he said the board would review the awarding to the policy in 1962 to Raleigh Insurance Agency Inc., headed by State Motor Vehicles Commissioner Jack A. Nuckols.

Raleigh Insurance, in turn, let Diversified Fire and Casualty Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of an all-West Virginia firm, Diversified Mountaineer Corp. cover the $1.3 million building. Burdett is a director and vice president of Diversified Fire and Casualty and a director and officer of Diversified Mountaineer.

Royal Indemnity insures 25 state armories and 29 other board properties.

West Virginia University Hospital Marks Birthday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia University Hospital, which will observe its third birthday Saturday, looks on the family doctor as the key to the institution's growth and development.

Director E. L. Staples called the institution a "referral center...oriented both to the academic programs of training physicians and nurses and other allied health personnel—and to the service function of care of patients based on a dollars-and-cents arrangement."

Noting that the hospital now has 520 beds and has served 25,358 patients since it was opened, Stables attributed the hospital's rapid development to:

—Recruitment and attraction to Morgantown of a competent staff of clinical physicians and administrative and technical personnel from all parts of the country.

—Availability of the specific kinds of clinical patients to come to this special type of a university-oriented hospital.

—Willingness of the state's physicians to send their patients to University Hospital.

Turning to the specific services of the hospital, Staples noted one of the most important is surgery —especially neuro-surgery.

The hospital has 15 full-time surgeons, 15 clinical associates and 19 residents in surgery and has performed over 6,000 operations.

Because there are very few in West Virginia, the busiest group of specialists have been neuro-surgeons.

Many accident cases involving damage to the skull are now being brought to the hospital from northern and central West Virginia, Staples added.

Other delicate surgical operations performed frequently at the hospital include "open heart" surgery, closed heart surgery and the inserting of tiny electronic machines inside the bodies of older persons to make sure their hearts beat at a regular rate.

The tiny transistors and mercury batteries in these machines, called pacemakers, are of a type first used for space satellites.

Other important aspects of the hospital's operation are the Clinical Center for Metabolic Studies, the Social Service Department and the concept of "total care."

The metabolism center, made possible by a five-year grant from the National Institutes of Health of the U.S. Public Health Service, is concerned with the substances taken in and discharged by the body and the secrets of how glands work.

This service is particularly important to patients who can't afford the long period of hospitalization needed to get meaningful results in their cases. The costs of hospitalization in such cases are paid through the grant.

The social Service Department is charged with helping patients after they are discharged.

The concept of "total care" means that all personnel, facilities and equipment are made available at the hospital for the complete diagnosis of all medical problems, with subsequent treatment.

Rescue Teams Strive To Open Closed Mine

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI)—Rescue teams continued efforts Friday to get Eastern Associated Coal Corp.'s nearby Grant Town mine back into operation.

The mine has been closed since a fire last Christmas.

Three rescue teams, all from the Grant Town mine, entered the pit after a 10-man inspection team composed of state, federal and company officials inspected the mine for four hours Thursday night.

The rescue workers started erecting temporary stoppings to prevent air from reaching areas where the fire began. The "air-locking" operation will supply the teams with fresh air as they work their way toward the original fire section two miles from the entrance.

Kiwanians Hear Report On Veterinary Medicine

KEYSER—Thomas From, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, who is now practicing his profession here as well as throughout the South Branch Valley, was guest speaker during the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Rosemont Restaurant.

Dr. From gave the Kiwanians a report on various phases of his profession, explaining the number of cases treated, nature of various cases, increasing interest among citizens of the area, and some of his plans and hopes for the future.

He pointed out that most veterinarians are not used to the fullest extent . . . they have good public health training and strive to promote good health among animals, constantly detetrtmining if dogs should be around human beings and whethter or not their diseases are communicable to people.

Dr. From stated there are only 19 colleges of veterinary medicine in North America and those who engage in private businesses are always eager to present the best equipment and as proficient service as is available in other medical fields.

He said he would like to see the day when Keyser could boast of a modern hospital, with new equipment, because a veterinary clinic tends to attract new people to a community, thus bringing in new business and increasing civic pride.

He said that at the local clinic he and his assistants do all types of surgery, repair fractures, remove spleens, kidney stones, and gall bladders. He says they strive to conduct a complete, efficient, and proficient institution and that many "vets" are hopeful that some day there will be blood banks to proved needed blood for dogs, cats, horses, and cows. He said that in the past year he has done about 35 infusions at the local clinic.

Guests at the meeting were Garland Easterly and Rev. Robert Cook. W. E. Michael gave a report from the float committee and a board meeting followed.

Craig Beats Cubs To End Losing Streak; Orioles Whip Senators

Mets Win, 7-3, On Hickman's Slam In Ninth

Roger Halts Spin At 18 Games, One Short Of Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sweat-soaked Roger Craig, making each pitch as if the World Series depended upon it, ended his 18-game losing streak one short of an all-time record Friday night when Jim Hickman's ninth-inning grand slam gave the New York Mets a 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

A Polo Grounds crowd of 11,566 tendered the 32-year-old Craig a standing ovation after Hickman had blasted a 3-2 pitch by Cub reliever Lindy McDaniel into the upper left field stands with the bases full and two out in the ninth.

Craig thus earned his first victory since April 29 and only his third of the season against 20 defeats. Had he lost Friday night, he would have equalled the major league record of 19 consecutive defeats established by John Nabors of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

Play Hearts Out

The Mets played their hearts out for Craig.

They slid head first into first base on close plays, tried for an extra base at the slightest opportunity and extended themselves to heroic lengths on defense.

Craig struck out eight batters, walking only one and scattering eight hits. His roughest inning was the fifth when the Cubs went ahead, 2-1, on Andre Rodgers' third homer and Lou Brock's eighth of the season.

Score Two In Fifth

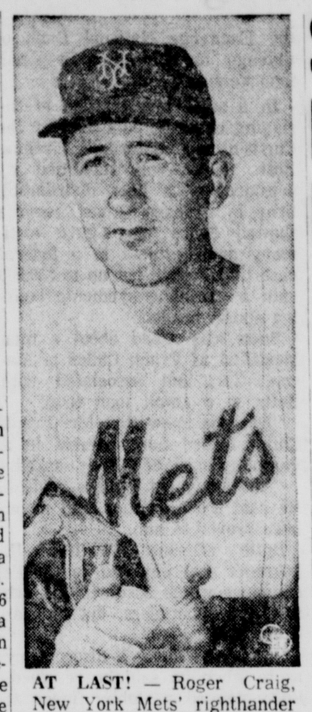

The Mets promptly scored two runs in the bottom of the fifth on a walk, a sacrifice, Ron Santo's error and singles by Duke Carmel and Duke Snider.

Cub right-hander Paul Toth was charged with his seventh loss in 10 decisions. He set the stage for the Mets' winning rally in the ninth by yielding a single to Joe Hicks and a double to Al Moran sending Hicks to third. McDaniel then came on and walked pinch-hitter Tim Harkness, filling the bases, and Hickman ended the game with his 11th homer.

AT LAST! — Roger Craig, New York Mets' righthander who had lost 18 games in a row, snapped his jinx last night as the last place New Yorkers scored a dramatic 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds. Jim Hickman's grand slam home run with two out in the bottom of the ninth gave Craig and the Mets the victory.

Snyder Drives In Three Runs In 7-1 Triumph

McNally Winner With Relief Help From Dick Hall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russ Snyder batted in three runs with a bases-loaded walk and an eighth inning triple, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-1 victory over the Washington Senators Friday night.

Dave McNally, who departed after Senators' reliever Ed Roebuck singled to lead off the seventh inning, was the winner with Dick Hall's relief help.

Hall retired nine in a row.

Washington starter Jim Duckworth pitched four perfect innings but broke the spell when he hit John Orsino to lead off the fifth. Al Smith singled, and Orsino scored as the Senators ended the inning by completing a doubleplay with a rundown.

Jerry Adair doubled, McNally walked, Luis Aparicio singled and Snyder walked before Roebuck replaced Duckworth with none out in the sixth. The Orioles landed on Roebuck for three in the eighth, with Snyder's triple accounting for two runs.

Brooks Robinson, out of the starting line-up for a rest, played the ninth inning, extending his consecutive game streak to 462.

The Mounties executed a triple play to halt a Cresaptown threat in the bottom of the sixth. With runners on first and second and none out, Pete Martz lofted a fly to short leftfield which was caught on the run by Mountie shortstop Bobby Seibert. Tom Sindy was doubled off second and Gerald Rice was caught off first to complete the triple killing.

Seibert also starred at bat, going four-for-four with a pair of triples included. Kenny Layman hit a three-bagger and single for the Mounties, while Sindy and Ralph Martin accounted for five of Cresaptown's nine safeties.

Twins Top Boston

MINNEAPOLIS-St.PAUL (UPI)—Jim Perry allowed the Boston Red Sox only four hits Friday night and his mates pounded three home runs to give the Minnesota Twins their eighth victory in their last nine games, 5-3.

The only solid hit off Perry were homers by Dick Stuart and Carl Yastrzemski.

Stuart hit a two-run homer in the fourth, his 25th of the season, and Yastrzemski hit a solo blast in the ninth.

The victory gave Perry a 9-8 mark. Rookie Dave Morehead took the loss, his 9th in 15 games.

Frostburg At Barrelville For Pen-Mar Game Today

Mt. Savage, Leading By 2½ Games, Hosts Hyndman Tomorrow

Frostburg's Merchants engage the Old Exports at Barrelville in the only game on tap today in the Pen-Mar Baseball League but all six teams will swing into action Sunday with Hyndman at Mt. Savage, Barrelville at Frostburg and the Cumberland Hermans at Lonaconing.

The league's mid-week schedule fell as flat as a pancake when Lonaconing forfeited to Barrelville and the feature Mt. Savage-Frostburg game was rained out Wednesday. The forfeiture, incidentally, was the first in 83 scheduled games this season.

Frostburg could cut Mt. Savage's lead to two games if victorious over Barrelville in the sixth game of their series today at 3:30 p.m. Mt. Savage is 19-7 and Frostburg 16-9. The Old Germans have four games left to play and Frostburg has five before the pennant race ends Sunday, August 25.

The Mountain City team has beaten Barrelville, 9-2, 8-6, 9-3 and 3-2 and one game ended in a 2-2 tie.

Mt. Savage has won four games from Hyndman, 4-1, 8-2, 7-1 and 3-1 while dropping a 1-0 decision.

Cumberland holds a 3-2 edge in its series with Lonaconing, having won by 1-0, 13-7 and 5-4 in ten innings while losing 6-2 and 4-2 contests.

Umpiring assignments for games next weekend were announced yesterday, as follows:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17

Mt. Savage at Frostburg — Russ Minnicks and Joe Geatz.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 18

Hyndman at Barrelville — Howard Brode and Moose Arnone.

Lonaconing at Frostburg — Bill Andrews and John Boyle.

Mt. Savage at Cumberland — Mel Nee and Russ Minnicks.

Chisox Win, 2-1, Horlen Injured

CHICAGO (UPI)—Eddie Fisher replaced injured starter Joe Horlen in the fourth inning Friday night and pitched two-hit ball the rest of the way to help the Chicago White Sox open a twi-night doubleheader with a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Horlen, a young righthander with a 6-3 record, suffered a back injury in a collision with Norm Cash in a race for first base after two outs in the fourth inning.

Rocky Colavito hit his 17th home run earlier in the frame to tie the score at 1-1.

Horlen was carried off the field on a stretcher and taken to Mercy Hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of his injuries.

Marichal Stops Phils For 18th

Cepeda Powers Giants' 4-0 Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — San Francisco's Juan Marichal moved a step closer to a 20 victory season as Orlando Cepeda supplied the batting punch for a 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Marichal posted his 18th win in a contest in which the Phils had base runners in all but one inning. The Giants' righthand ace scattered seven Philly hits, however, and got out of every jam.

Cepeda was the batting hero, driving home three runs and scoring the others as the Giants tagged Ray Culp with his fourth loss in four shots against them this season.

Willie McCovey slammed a 425-foot triple over center fielder Tony Gonzalez' head in the fourth and scampered home on Cepeda's single.

That was the only marker the Giants could garner off Culp in his seven innings on the mound. Reliever Jack Baldschun couldn't hold the second place Giants who scored three clinching runs in the eighth. Cepeda brought home a pair with a double and scored himself on Ed Bailey's double.

Barrelville Nips Stringtown, 4-3

Hyndman Upset By National Jet

Scoring all of their runs in the second inning, the Barrelville Old Germans eked out a 4-3 triumph over visiting Stringtown yesterday for their 13th straight County Softball League win.

National Jet won its second game in 28 starts, upsetting Hyndman 8-5 at Narrows Park, and Corriganville rallied for four runs in the last of the seventh to nudge Kennell's Mill, 5-4.

Everyone in Barrelville's batting order hit safely, with Kenny Neubiser's double the only extra-base knock. Bill Kenney held Stringtown to three hits.

A bases-loaded walk given up by Clyde Kennell forced in the deciding run for Corriganville in a seventh inning that was highlighted by Wayne Duckworth's two-bagger and a triple by Leo Lease. Bill Burkett also doubled for the Corgs, and Lease collected a single in addition to his three-bagger. Ritchey homered and singled for the losers.

Jim Hillegas powered National Jet to victory with a pair of home runs and a triple. Bill Jenkins also tripled for the Jets, while Wilson paced Hyndman with a round-tripper, triple and single.

Craig Beats Cubs To End Losing Streak; Orioles Whip Senators

Roger Halts Spin At 18 Games, One Short Of Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sweat-soaked Roger Craig, making each pitch as if the World Series depended upon it, ended his 18-game losing streak one short of an all-time record Friday night when Jim Hickman's ninth-inning grand slam gave the New York Mets a 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

A Polo Grounds crowd of 11,566 tendered the 32-year-old Craig a standing ovation after Hickman had blasted a 3-2 pitch by Cub reliever Lindy McDaniel into the upper left field stands with the bases full and two out in the ninth.

Craig thus earned his first victory since April 29 and only his third of the season against 20 defeats. Had he lost Friday night, he would have equalled the major league record of 19 consecutive defeats established by John Nabors of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916.

Play Hearts Out

The Mets played their hearts out for Craig.

They slid head first into first base on close plays, tried for an extra base at the slightest opportunity and extended themselves to heroic lengths on defense.

Craig struck out eight batters, walking only one and scattering eight hits. His roughest inning was the fifth when the Cubs went ahead, 2-1, on Andre Rodgers' third homer and Lou Brock's eighth of the season.

Score Two In Fifth

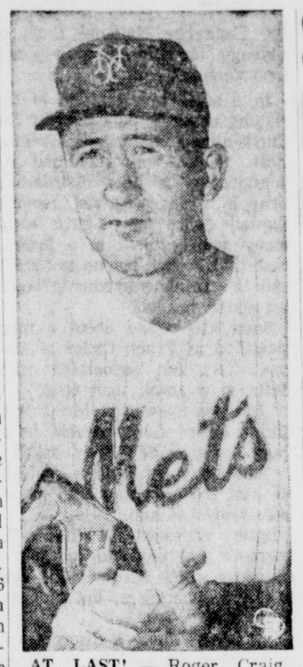

The Mets promptly scored two runs in the bottom of the fifth on a walk, a sacrifice, Ron Santo's error and singles by Duke Carmel and Duke Snider.

Cub right-hander Paul Toth was charged with his seventh loss in 10 decisions. He set the stage for the Mets' winning rally in the ninth by yielding a single to Joe Hicks and a double to Al Moran sending Hicks to third. McDaniel then came on and walked pinch-hitter Tim Harkness, filling the bases, and Hickman ended the game with his 11th homer.

AT LAST! — Roger Craig, New York Mets' righthander who had lost 18 games in a row, snapped his jinx last night as the last place New Yorkers scored a dramatic 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds. Jim Hickman's grand slam home run with two out in the bottom of the ninth gave Craig and the Mets the victory.

The LaVale Pirates scored a 6-4 upset victory over Mt. Savage yesterday in a Bi-State Pony Baseball League battle at Shehan Field. The surprising win was the sixth for the Pirates against 14 losses, while Mt. Savage dropped to 12-7.

Lonaconing spilled the LaVale Cubs 5-2 at home, and the Frostburg Mounties came up with a pair of runs in the top of the eighth inning to defeat Cresaptown, 4-2.

Gary Robinette went all the way on the hill for the Pirates, settling down after yielding three runs in the first two innings. Robinette struck out 13 and surrendered six hits.

Don Wagner led the Pirates with a double and single, and Gary Rymer and Corky Hickie both doubled for the LaVale club. Steve Wilson socked a triple and Ed Winfield a double for Mt. Savage.

Winning pitcher Keith Kiddy paced Lonaconing at the plate with a double and single, and Tom Shockey came through with a pair of safeties. Ken Shelley and Joe Beynon shared four of the Cub's eight hits.

The Mounties executed a triple play to halt a Cresaptown threat in the bottom of the sixth. With runners on first and second and none out, Pete Martz lofted a fly to short leftfield which was caught on the run by Mountie shortstop Bobby Seibert. Tom Sindy was doubled off second and Gerald Rice was caught off first to complete the triple killing.

Seibert also starred at bat, going four-for-four with a pair of triples included. Kenny Layman hit a three-bagger and single for the Mounties, while Sindy and Ralph Martin accounted for five of Cresaptown's nine safeties.

Snyder Drives In Three Runs In 7-1 Triumph

McNally Winner With Relief Help From Dick Hall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russ Snyder batted in three runs with a bases-loaded walk and an eighth inning triple, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-1 victory over the Washington Senators Friday night.

Dave McNally, who departed after Senators' reliever Ed Roebuck singled to lead off the seventh inning, was the winner with Dick Hall's relief help.

Hall retired nine in a row.

Washington starter Jim Duckworth pitched four perfect innings but broke the spell when he hit John Orsino to lead off the fifth. Al Smith singled, and Orsino scored as the Senators ended the inning by completing a doubleplay with a rundown.

Jerry Adair doubled, McNally walked, Luis Aparicio singled and Snyder walked before Roebuck replaced Duckworth with none out in the sixth. The Orioles landed on Roebuck for three in the eighth, with Snyder's triple accounting for two runs.

Brooks Robinson, out of the starting line-up for a rest, played the ninth inning, extending his consecutive game streak to 462.

Cepeda Powers Giants' 4-0 Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — San Francisco's Juan Marichal moved a step closer to a 20 victory season as Orlando Cepeda supplied the batting punch for a 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Marichal posted his 18th win in a contest in which the Phils had base runners in all but one inning. The Giants' righthand ace scattered seven Philly hits, however, and got out of every jam.

Cepeda was the batting hero, driving home three runs and scoring the others as the Giants tagged Ray Culp with his fourth loss in four shots against them this season.

Willie McCovey slammed a 425-foot triple over center fielder Tony Gonzalez' head in the fourth and scampered home on Cepeda's single.

That was the only marker the Giants could garner off Culp in his seven innings on the mound. Reliever Jack Baldschun couldn't hold the second place Giants who scored three clinching runs in the eighth. Cepeda brought home a pair with a double and scored himself on Ed Bailey's double.

Frostburg At Barrelville For Pen-Mar Game Today

Mt. Savage, Leading By 2½ Games, Hosts Hyndman Tomorrow

Frostburg's Merchants engage the Old Exports at Barrelville in the only game on tap today in the Pen-Mar Baseball League but all six teams will swing into action Sunday with Hyndman at Mt. Savage, Barrelville at Frostburg and the Cumberland Hermans at Lonaconing.

The league's mid-week schedule fell as flat as a pancake when Lonaconing forfeited to Barrelville and the feature Mt. Savage-Frostburg game was rained out Wednesday. The forfeiture, incidentally, was the first in 83 scheduled games this season.

Frostburg could cut Mt. Savage's lead to two games if victorious over Barrelville in the sixth game of their series today at 3:30 p.m. Mt. Savage is 19-7 and Frostburg 16-9. The Old Germans have four games left to play and Frostburg has five before the pennant race ends Sunday, August 25.

The Mountain City team has beaten Barrelville, 9-2, 8-6, 9-3 and 3-2 and one game ended in a 2-2 tie.

Mt. Savage has won four games from Hyndman, 4-1, 8-2, 7-1 and 3-1 while dropping a 1-0 decision.

Cumberland holds a 3-2 edge in its series with Lonaconing, having won by 1-0, 13-7 and 5-4 in ten innings while losing 6-2 and 4-2 contests.

Umpiring assignments for games next weekend were announced yesterday, as follows:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17

Mt. Savage at Frostburg — Russ Minnicks and Joe Geatz.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 18

Hyndman at Barrelville — Howard Brode and Moose Arnone.

Lonaconing at Frostburg — Bill Andrews and John Boyle.

Mt. Savage at Cumberland — Mel Nee and Russ Minnicks.

Chisox Win, 2-1, Horlen Injured

CHICAGO (UPI)—Eddie Fisher replaced injured starter Joe Horlen in the fourth inning Friday night and pitched two-hit ball the rest of the way to help the Chicago White Sox open a twi-night doubleheader with a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Horlen, a young righthander with a 6-3 record, suffered a back injury in a collision with Norm Cash in a race for first base after two outs in the fourth inning.

Rocky Colavito hit his 17th home run earlier in the frame to tie the score at 1-1.

Horlen was carried off the field on a stretcher and taken to Mercy Hospital for X-rays to determine the extent of his injuries.

Barrelville Nips Stringtown, 4-3

Hyndman Upset By National Jet

Scoring all of their runs in the second inning, the Barrelville Old Germans eked out a 4-3 triumph over visiting Stringtown yesterday for their 13th straight County Softball League win.

National Jet won its second game in 28 starts, upsetting Hyndman 8-5 at Narrows Park, and Corriganville rallied for four runs in the last of the seventh to nudge Kennell's Mill, 5-4.

Everyone in Barrelville's batting order hit safely, with Kenny Neubiser's double the only extra-base knock. Bill Kenney held Stringtown to three hits.

A bases-loaded walk given up by Clyde Kennell forced in the deciding run for Corriganville in a seventh inning that was highlighted by Wayne Duckworth's two-bagger and a triple by Leo Lease. Bill Burkett also doubled for the Corgs, and Lease collected a single in addition to his three-bagger. Ritchey homered and singled for the losers.

Jim Hillegas powered National Jet to victory with a pair of home runs and a triple. Bill Jenkins also tripled for the Jets, while Wilson paced Hyndman with a round-tripper, triple and single.

Old Germans Win On Homer By Carcella

Knocks Pepsi-Cola From Playoffs, 5-4

Manager Ron Carcella knocked Pepsi-Cola out of the playoffs in the Rec Softball League yesterday when he blasted a two-run homer in the bottom of the 7th to give the Old Germans a 5-4 decision in the deciding game of the best-of-three series at Stitcher Field.

Carcella's smash to centerfield gave Denny Knippenberg the verdict over Bob Hook in the mound duel between southpaws, and advanced the Old Germans into the finals with the Old Exports next week.

Trailing 4-3 with two out in the 7th, Delton Barb set the stage for Carcella's round-tripper when he singled.

Knippenberg hurled a 6-hitter and struck out five while Hook yielded seven hits and whiffed four.

Ed Barley of the Old Germans and Kenny Johnson and John McVicker, of Pepsi-Cola, had two hits each.

Pepsi-Cola won the series opener 2-0 and the Old Gees copped the second game 6-2.

Pete Nears 100 Wins — Campers' 38th Year
Fight Examiner Dies — Anent Will McHugh

By C. V. BURNS

FLOYD "Pete" Elliott, pitching in the Rocking Chair Softball League for the ninth consecutive year, needs only two more wins for an even 100 in that circuit.

"Pete" posted his 98th win this week and owns a season record of 9-1. Over nine seasons he has lost 32 games.

Elliott actually made his debut in the R.C.L in the early 1950s with the F. O. Eagles but he was an infielder in those days. He credits Al Sheetz with teaching him to pitch and Al is one of the best softball hurlers ever developed on the area sandlots.

"Pete" played with four pennant - winning Eagles teams. He started pitching for the Loyal Order of Moose in 1955, was with the Outdoor Club in 1956 and 1957 and this is his 6th campaign with the V.F.W. He never had a losing season as a softball hurler.

The Vets get an oportunity to sew up the championship next week and if they do Elliott will have played with eight consecutive pennant winners in the R.C.L. and 12 championship teams in 13 years.

The veteran righthander hails from Centerville, Pa., and his dad, Bob Elliott, will be remembered as first baseman and manager of teams in the nearby Bedford County community.

DR. P. E. BERRY, 59, who died Saturday at his home in Piedmont, will be remembered as the examining physician for boxers in the fine amateur shows held by the Devon Club of Luke in the 1930s.

Dr. Paul Wilson refereed the bouts in those days when such Tri-Towns favorites as "Jiggs" McKnight, Joe McGreevy, Tracy Riggins, Frankie Freeman, Tony "Buff" DiUbaldo, Albert Nasser, Charley Viney, etc., boxed in the Devon Club shows. Dr. Wilson, incidentally, later managed McKnight in 45 pro fights. "Jiggs" won 103 of 105 bouts as an amateur, according to Dr. Wilson, and was 12-0 in 1935.

Dr. Wilson recalled that Dr. Berry played first base for Westvaco in the 1930s and was one of the outstanding players in the Bi-State League. When he attended college in North Carolina he had offers from several major league clubs but rejected a baseball career to study medicine.

Erwin "Doc" Berry, his son, who starred in basketball at Bruce High School, won the third annual Georges Creek Sportsmanship Award, donated by Farrady Post of Frostburg, in 1952.

According to Carroll Boggs, Dr. Berry was a member of the Cumberland Country Club, played golf over the local course numerous times and had many friends in Cumberland.

Dr. Berry was a North Carolinian and was related to Billy Joe Patton, one of the nation's topnotch amateur golfers from Morganton, N. C. The physician's mother is Maude Patton Berry, now a resident of Morganton.

ALLEGANY High School will be playing its 355th game when it opens its 38th football season with Bishop Guilfoyle High School, formerly Altoona Catholic High, Friday, September 6, at the local stadium.

Since 1926, the Campers have won 221 games, lost 109 and played 24 ties for an average of 67 per cent.

ONE of the tri - state area's basketball stars of yesterday — Francis "Irish" Clark, formerly of Meyersdale, Pa., — was the guest of Police Commissioner William V. Keegan at the latter's camp down the river the past weekend.

Clark, now a resident of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, once starred for the Broadway A. C., of Meyersdale, the Cumberland K. O. G. and the Akron Firestones. He was known as the "Mighty Atom" of the hardwoods.

"Irish" has four children — three boys and a girl.

He is visiting a brother in Alexandria, Va., this week.

THE DEATH of William Edward McHugh last week marked the passing of one of Cumberland's oldest boxing fans.

The veteran lawyer was interested in the ring sport since he was a boy and boxed at the YMCA but he gave it up when his mother didn't want him to become a "surprise fighter."

Mr. McHugh started studying law under Robert Gordon, for whom Lake Gordon is named, and he also was associated with Arch Young and Maj. William A. Huster, who served as state's attorney and later as Chief judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

Will, as his many friends knew him lived in New Orleans for 20 year and became acquainted with many of the good boxers there, including Pete Herman, Happy Littleton and Martin Burke, who was Jack Dempsey's sparring partner. His local favorite was Fay Keiser, who fought all the topnotchers in his day.

Born on North Mechanic street 74 years ago, Mr. McHugh came from a family of 13 children (7 boys and 6 girls), three of whom are living, namely, Mrs. Peter Codire and Stanley McHugh, of Cumberland, and Sister Joseph Therese, of Pittsburgh. Their father, James McHugh, was a coal dealer for 60 years with headquarters in the car barn alley off North Centre street.

The McHugh and Morehead families once lived opposite each other on Gramlich's alley a short distance from the famed Gramlich's spring.

Fullmer Meets Dick Tiger In Nigeria Today

Latter Will Defend Middleweight Title

By KENNETH WHITING

IBADAN, Nigeria (AP)—Dick Tiger will defend the world middleweight title and the prestige of his native land Saturday against former champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, in the first championship fight ever held in Nigeria.

The 15-round match is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Nigerian time which is only 1:30 p.m. EST. British referee Dick Hart will be the only official. When it is over he will raise the arm of the winner without further ado.

Meet Third Time

This will be the third meeting of these 160-pounders who are well-matched physically although Tiger does have a two-inch advantage in reach. Tiger, father of four, won the title by outpointing Fullmer in San Francisco, Oct. 23, 1962. Although many thought Fullmer would retire after taking that beating he went through with a rematch and fought to a draw Feb. 23 at Las Vegas.

The Nigerian government has thrown its full support behind the promotion, subsidizing the fight for $280,000. Jack Solomons, British promoter, came in to run the show. Tiger gets a $100,000 guarantee and Fullmer $50,000 plus $10,000 in expenses.

The rainy season is on the wane but heavy, drenching showers still are a daily occurance, lasting two or three hours. Chief Joseph Modupe Johnson, cabinet minister for Labor and Sports, has hired a couple of rain doctors to chase away the clouds, just in case any would-be fans still have a sentimental attachment to such mumbo jumbo.

45,000 To See Bout

A crowd of 45,000 is expected at Liberty Stadium, normally used for soccer matches. Much will depend on the weather for this city is located 89 miles from Lagos, the capital of the nation, with which it is connected by a two-lane highway.

Wally Butts Denies Knowledge Of Friends' Gambling Activities

Court Recesses For Weekend In Libel Trial

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP) — Wallace Butts, charged by a magazine with rigging a football game, testified today in federal court he had no knowledge of alleged gambling activities by two friends, one a business associate in a small loan firm.

He was asked about the telephone calls and his association with two persons on cross-examination after denying he had ever betrayed Georgia's football team by giving inside information to opposing coaches.

"Emphatically no," the stocky, graying Butts replied when asked if he had fed pre-game data on Georgia to Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama last fall.

Answering questions of an attorney for Curtis Publishing Co., Butts said he knew Frank Scoby of Chicago as a good friend whom he met in the 1940s through Frank Leahy, then Notre Dame coach.

"Did you know that Mr. Scoby was a pretty big gambler?" asked Welborn B. Cody, chief counsel for Curtis, defending against a $10 million libel suit by Butts.

"This is the first time I knew . . ." answered Butts.

"How many times have you seen him in Chicago?"

"Many times. . . he is a very good friend."

Butts testified that Scoby helped arrange a $6,000 loan from the Exchange National Bank of Chicago for investing in small loan ventures.

In a state investigation of the rigging charges, published by the Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post, Scoby was identified as president of a beer distributing firm in Chicago. Court records showed Scoby once gave testimony as a witness in a federal case that he had bet up to $50,000 with a gambling syndicate booking sports events.

Butts was asked about a man identified as Frank Childs of Macon, Ga., and associated with Butts in a small loan firm.

"Did you know that Mr. Frank Childs owned part interest in a gambling casino?" Cody asked.

"Absolutely not," Butts replied. He said the allegation had never been proved to him.

Butts attorney, William H. Schroder Jr.) objected to Cody's questions which assumed the two men were gamblers, but he was overruled.

Questioned about a discrepancy as to when he said he resigned, Butts pointed a stubby finger at Cody and said indignantly, "I corrected that, Mr. Cody, and you know it . . . "

Court recessed for the weekend after Butts testified.

Earlier, Schroder questioned Butts at length about the Post charges that he and the Alabama coach rigged last year's game.

Colts And Eagles Clash At Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, bulwarked by a pair of veterans obtained in off-season deals and a highly prized rookie end, open their 1963 National Football League exhibition season Saturday night against the Baltimore Colts.

Last in the East in 1962 with a 3-10-1 log, the Eagles are hopeful that Bill Quinlan, defensive end secured from the champion Green Bay Packers, and husky tackle Frank Fuller, also grabbed in a deal, will help them move up in the race.

While the Colts, who wound up fourth in the west a year ago will be counting on Quarterback Johnny Unitas and his passing target, Raymond Berry and the fleet Lenny Moore, new Head Coach Don Shula also is hopeful for such newcomers as end Willie Richardson, tackle Bob Vogel, and Jerry Logan, a defensive safety

Trailing 4-3 with two out in the 7th, Delton Barb set the stage for Carcella's round-tripper when he singled.

Pete Nears 100 Wins — Campers' 38th Year
Fight Examiner Dies — Anent Will McHugh

By C. V. BURNS

FLOYD "Pete" Elliott, pitching in the Rocking Chair Softball League for the ninth consecutive year, needs only two more wins for an even 100 in that circuit.

"Pete" posted his 98th win this week and owns a season record of 9-1. Over nine seasons he has lost 32 games.

Elliott actually made his debut in the R.C.L in the early 1950s with the F. O. Eagles but he was an infielder in those days. He credits Al Sheetz with teaching him to pitch and Al is one of the best softball hurlers ever developed on the area sandlots.

"Pete" played with four pennant - winning Eagles teams. He started pitching for the Loyal Order of Moose in 1955, was with the Outdoor Club in 1956 and 1957 and this is his 6th campaign with the V.F.W. He never had a losing season as a softball hurler.

The Vets get an oportunity to sew up the championship next week and if they do Elliott will have played with eight consecutive pennant winners in the R.C.L. and 12 championship teams in 13 years.

The veteran righthander hails from Centerville, Pa., and his dad, Bob Elliott, will be remembered as first baseman and manager of teams in the nearby Bedford County community.

DR. P. E. BERRY, 59, who died Saturday at his home in Piedmont, will be remembered as the examining physician for boxers in the fine amateur shows held by the Devon Club of Luke in the 1930s.

Dr. Paul Wilson refereed the bouts in those days when such Tri-Towns favorites as "Jiggs" McKnight, Joe McGreevy, Tracy Riggins, Frankie Freeman, Tony "Buff" DiUbaldo, Albert Nasser, Charley Viney, etc., boxed in the Devon Club shows. Dr. Wilson, incidentally, later managed McKnight in 45 pro fights. "Jiggs" won 103 of 105 bouts as an amateur, according to Dr. Wilson, and was 12-0 in 1935.

Dr. Wilson recalled that Dr. Berry played first base for Westvaco in the 1930s and was one of the outstanding players in the Bi-State League. When he attended college in North Carolina he had offers from several major league clubs but rejected a baseball career to study medicine.

Erwin "Doc" Berry, his son, who starred in basketball at Bruce High School, won the third annual Georges Creek Sportsmanship Award, donated by Farrady Post of Frostburg, in 1952.

According to Carroll Boggs, Dr. Berry was a member of the Cumberland Country Club, played golf over the local course numerous times and had many friends in Cumberland.

Dr. Berry was a North Carolinian and was related to Billy Joe Patton, one of the nation's topnotch amateur golfers from Morganton, N. C. The physician's mother is Maude Patton Berry, now a resident of Morganton.

ALLEGANY High School will be playing its 355th game when it opens its 38th football season with Bishop Guilfoyle High School, formerly Altoona Catholic High, Friday, September 6, at the local stadium.

Since 1926, the Campers have won 221 games, lost 109 and played 24 ties for an average of 67 per cent.

ONE of the tri - state area's basketball stars of yesterday — Francis "Irish" Clark, formerly of Meyersdale, Pa., — was the guest of Police Commissioner William V. Keegan at the latter's camp down the river the past weekend.

Clark, now a resident of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, once starred for the Broadway A. C., of Meyersdale, the Cumberland K. O. G. and the Akron Firestones. He was known as the "Mighty Atom" of the hardwoods.

"Irish" has four children — three boys and a girl.

He is visiting a brother in Alexandria, Va., this week.

ALBERT "Bunny" Saum, of Palm Springs, Calif., one of the pitching stars in the days when "Pop" Trozzo's Whirlwinds ruled the local softball roost, is a visitor here for a reunion with his old teammates.

THE DEATH of William Edward McHugh last week marked the passing of one of Cumberland's oldest boxing fans.

The veteran lawyer was interested in the ring sport since he was a boy and boxed at the YMCA but he gave it up when his mother didn't want him to become a "surprise fighter."

Mr. McHugh started studying law under Robert Gordon, for whom Lake Gordon is named, and he also was associated with Arch Young and Maj. William A. Huster, who served as state's attorney and later as Chief judge of the Fourth Judicial Circuit.

Will, as his many friends knew him lived in New Orleans for 20 year and became acquainted with many of the good boxers there, including Pete Herman, Happy Littleton and Martin Burke, who was Jack Dempsey's sparring partner. His local favorite was Fay Keiser, who fought all the topnotchers in his day.

Born on North Mechanic street 74 years ago, Mr. McHugh came from a family of 13 children (7 boys and 6 girls), three of whom are living, namely, Mrs. Peter Codire and Stanley McHugh, of Cumberland, and Sister Joseph Therese, of Pittsburgh. Their father, James McHugh, was a coal dealer for 60 years with headquarters in the car barn alley off North Centre street.

Fullmer Meets Dick Tiger In Nigeria Today

Latter Will Defend Middleweight Title

By KENNETH WHITING

IBADAN, Nigeria (AP)—Dick Tiger will defend the world middleweight title and the prestige of his native land Saturday against former champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, in the first championship fight ever held in Nigeria.

The 15-round match is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Nigerian time which is only 1:30 p.m. EST. British referee Dick Hart will be the only official. When it is over he will raise the arm of the winner without further ado.

Meet Third Time

This will be the third meeting of these 160-pounders who are well-matched physically although Tiger does have a two-inch advantage in reach. Tiger, father of four, won the title by outpointing Fullmer in San Francisco, Oct. 23, 1962. Although many thought Fullmer would retire after taking that beating he went through with a rematch and fought to a draw Feb. 23 at Las Vegas.

The Nigerian government has thrown its full support behind the promotion, subsidizing the fight for $280,000. Jack Solomons, British promoter, came in to run the show. Tiger gets a $100,000 guarantee and Fullmer $50,000 plus $10,000 in expenses.

The rainy season is on the wane but heavy, drenching showers still are a daily occurance, lasting two or three hours. Chief Joseph Modupe Johnson, cabinet minister for Labor and Sports, has hired a couple of rain doctors to chase away the clouds, just in case any would-be fans still have a sentimental attachment to such mumbo jumbo.

45,000 To See Bout

A crowd of 45,000 is expected at Liberty Stadium, normally used for soccer matches. Much will depend on the weather for this city is located 89 miles from Lagos, the capital of the nation, with which it is connected by a two-lane highway.

Wally Butts Denies Knowledge Of Friends' Gambling Activities

Court Recesses For Weekend In Libel Trial

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP) — Wallace Butts, charged by a magazine with rigging a football game, testified today in federal court he had no knowledge of alleged gambling activities by two friends, one a business associate in a small loan firm.

He was asked about the telephone calls and his association with two persons on cross-examination after denying he had ever betrayed Georgia's football team by giving inside information to opposing coaches.

"Emphatically no," the stocky, graying Butts replied when asked if he had fed pre-game data on Georgia to Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant of Alabama last fall.

Answering questions of an attorney for Curtis Publishing Co., Butts said he knew Frank Scoby of Chicago as a good friend whom he met in the 1940s through Frank Leahy, then Notre Dame coach.

"Did you know that Mr. Scoby was a pretty big gambler?" asked Welborn B. Cody, chief counsel for Curtis, defending against a $10 million libel suit by Butts.

"This is the first time I knew . . ." answered Butts.

"How many times have you seen him in Chicago?"

"Many times. . . he is a very good friend."

Butts testified that Scoby helped arrange a $6,000 loan from the Exchange National Bank of Chicago for investing in small loan ventures.

In a state investigation of the rigging charges, published by the Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post, Scoby was identified as president of a beer distributing firm in Chicago. Court records showed Scoby once gave testimony as a witness in a federal case that he had bet up to $50,000 with a gambling syndicate booking sports events.

Butts was asked about a man identified as Frank Childs of Macon, Ga., and associated with Butts in a small loan firm.

"Did you know that Mr. Frank Childs owned part interest in a gambling casino?" Cody asked.

"Absolutely not," Butts replied. He said the allegation had never been proved to him.

Butts attorney, William H. Schroder Jr., objected to Cody's questions which assumed the two men were gamblers, but he was overruled.

Questioned about a discrepancy as to when he said he resigned, Butts pointed a stubby finger at Cody and said indignantly, "I corrected that, Mr. Cody, and you know it . . . "

Court recessed for the weekend after Butts testified.

Earlier, Schroder questioned Butts at length about the Post charges that he and the Alabama coach rigged last year's game.

Colts And Eagles Clash At Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, bulwarked by a pair of veterans obtained in off-season deals and a highly prized rookie end, open their 1963 National Football League exhibition season Saturday night against the Baltimore Colts.

Last in the East in 1962 with a 3-10-1 log, the Eagles are hopeful that Bill Quinlan, defensive end secured from the champion Green Bay Packers, and husky tackle Frank Fuller, also grabbed in a deal, will help them move up in the race.

While the Colts, who wound up fourth in the west a year ago will be counting on Quarterback Johnny Unitas and his passing target, Raymond Berry and the fleet Lenny Moore, new Head Coach Don Shula also is hopeful for such newcomers as end Willie Richardson, tackle Bob Vogel, and Jerry Logan, a defensive safety

The Eagles report that the 8:05 p.m. game is a sellout and that standing room only will be sold at the gate.

Two Girls Die In Empty Freezer

Suffocate While Playing

Two Bedford area children suffocated yesterday afternoon while playing in an empty freezer at their grandfather's home in Coleraine Township, nine miles south of Bedford.

Susan Kay James, 4, and Debbie Renee James, 6, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John G. James, Coleraine Township, were found dead at 5 p. m. by their grandfather after their absence had been discovered an hour earlier.

Glenn A. James, 72, went into the storage section of his double house and saw the freezer which had been turned off, with the lid shut. Upon opening it, he discovered the two girls and two dead kittens which they had evidently taken with them. Beside the freezer was a lard can which the girls may have used as a step to climb into the freezer.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford report that the tragedy may have occurred shortly after 1 p. m., but that any search was delayed because the grandparents believed the children to be at their own home, about 100 yards away, and the girls' mother thought they were with the grandparents. The children were last seen about 1 p. m. by an aunt.

The Bedford County coronor's office and State Police are investigating the deaths.

Besides their parents and paternal grandparents, the girls are survived by six older sisters and an older brother.

Foster Care For Mentally Retarded Aired

County May Be Used For Pilot Program

Allegany and Garrett counties may be used as a pilot study program for the placement of mentally retarded persons in foster homes.

The plan was discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting at the Allegany County Health Department.

Taking part in the discussion were Dr. Benjamin D. White, chief of the division of children's services for the Maryland State Department of Health; Mrs. Barbara Marlowe, chief of social services for the Rosewood State Institution for the Retarded; Dr. Arthur F. Jones, acting deputy state health officer for Garrett County; Mrs. Kathryn Speicher, supervisor of public health nursing service for Garrett County, and Miss Perlina Z. Grassi, supervisor of public health nursing for Allegany County.

Dr. Jones said Dr. White and Mrs. Marlowe told the group Rosewood Institute is overcrowded and the state would like to place several adults and children out in foster homes in the two counties.

Dr. White and Mrs. Marlowe said there are many persons in the institution who they think would respond better in foster homes than in the institution.

They pointed out these foster care "parolees" would be under the care of the nursing services of both counties and representatives of the institution.

Under this pilot study program, not more than six foster homes would be sought. It also was pointed out at the meeting that the entire program would be supported by funds from the State Department of Mental Hygiene.

This pilot program for retarded persons would not be connected in any way with the present welfare foster home program.

Man Ordered Held For Jury For Uttering

Norman H. White Released On Bond

Norman Hiser White, 43, of 745 Maryland Avenue, yesterday was ordered held for action of the October term of the grand jury of Allegany County Circuit Court on a charge of uttering.

White was charged earlier in the week with forging the name on a money order and cashing it at a local tavern, but the charge was changed yesterday to uttering, or the act of passing of forged or fradulent checks or documents.

Magistrate Leslie J. Clark conducted the preliminary hearing and ruled that the state had enough evidence for White to be held for the grand jury. White was released on $500 bond.

State's Attorney James S. Getty presented the state's case and used a number of witnesses to show that White had been with a man named Raymond Lawrence Hull when Hull cashed three fradulent money orders for $92 each on July 18.

It also was brought out at the hearing that Hull used the name of Ray H. Vance when he cashed two checks at two taverns and another at a local service station.

County Investigator William F. Baker said Hull, who is 37 years old and a former resident of Cumberland and Ridgeley, is still being sought in connection with the passing of the bad money orders.

The money orders were drawn on the Nation-Wide Check Corporation in Baltimore. The original money orders were purchased for "$02.00" and the figure 0 in front of the 2 was altered to look like a 9.

White was represented at yesterday's hearing by John Sullivan.

15 Appointed To W.Va. Study Group Posts

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron yesterday announced the make-up of the State Salary Study Commission, authorized by the 1963 Legislature to study salaries of all elective and appointed state officials.

The commission is composed of five persons selected by Barron, five by Senate President Howard Carson and five named by House Speaker Julius Singleton.

Barron appointed Mrs. John Scott, Oak Hill, James T. Nelson, Bridgeport and Eugene A. Carter, Gurnett E. Ferguson and R. F. Randolph, all of Charleston.

Carson named Miles Stanley, Charleston, president of the State Labor Federation, John Faulconer, managing editor of the Hinton Daily News, State Sen. Lloyd G. Jackson, Hamlin, Claude E. Vance, East Rainelle and Lon M. Rish, Bluefield.

Selected by Singleton were Ralph Bean, Moorefield, Ben Honaker of Wheeling, James Leeber, Beckley and Haze Webb and George Higginbotham, both of Fairmont.

Officials Discuss Dam Repair

Work on the repair of the city's two dams, at Lake Gordon and Lake Koon will start on Monday, August 19, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum and Water Commissioner G. Ray Light said yesterday.

The officials conferred with representatives of the Air Replacement Company of Grafton, W. Va., yesterday in City Hall.

The contract was signed by the company to restore the weathered surfaces of the dams by the use of reinforced "shotcrete" and the sealing of a leak in Lake Gordon by pressure grouting.

The Grafton firm was awarded the contract by the Mayor and Council this week at a cost of $68,383.25.

Bed Destroyed In LaVale Fire

LaVale Fire Department answered a call early yesterday at the home of Charles Kahl, Cash Valley Road, where the bed in which he had been sleeping was smouldering.

Two pumper trucks, an equipment truck and 24 men answered the call at 2:40 a. m. and were able to quell the fire before further damage incurred. The cause was smoking in bed.

The bed was destroyed and the upstairs of the house was full of smoke, necessitating the use of air masks and smoke ejector fans by the firemen.

On talking to Kahl, representatives of the fire company learned that he had been awakened by the smoke and phoned in immediately.

His family was away at the time of the incident, visiting in Oakland.

The event will be held from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m. and will be in charge of aerie board of trustees. A committee of 30 persons also will assist.

Zoning Board Denies Permit For Restaurant

Opinion Filed By City Unit

The Zoning Board of Appeals has disapproved the application of Garland Darr, 336 Central Avenue, to occupy a dwelling at 815 Maryland Avenue as a restaurant.

Mr. Darr submitted an application for the appeal on July 2 and the application was disapproved by unanimous action of the board Thursday.

In an opinion, the board said: "The application of Garland Darr to occupy premises at 815 Maryland Avenue, in the City of Cumberland, as business, restaurant known as Chicken Nest, was heard by the Board of Zoning Appeals on July 11, 1963, at 8 p.m., in the City Hall, with James C. Gardner, chairman, and Sidney H. Storer Sr., member, present.

Few Changes Are Made At Budget Meet

Retirees May Get Benefits

The Mayor and Council last night authorized City Comptroller Paul E. Rodecap to work out a trial budget incorporating funds for paying the full cost of hospitalization for all city employes.

Mr. Rodecap was also asked to investigate the cost of providing health and welfare payments for retired or retiring employes of the city.

Another long meeting of Mayor Earl D. Chaney and Commissioners Light, Keegan and Mrs. Roder failed to come up with a better alternative for employes than to pay the full health and welfare costs, which run $14.05 for employes with families. The City now pays the full cost of the employe's share.

It was Water Commissioner G. Ray Light who raised the question of the possibility of paying the hospitalization insurance costs of workers who retire.

Sets $45,000 Limit

He asked Mr. Rodecap if funds could be found and was told that about $45,000 should be the limit. That would allow about $3,000 for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield payments for retired workers.

The cost estimates which will be prepared will include the cost of payments for workers due to retire during this fiscal year and for including workers who have retired during the past 10 years.

Mayor Chaney received no objections when he asked if all were going to go for health and welfare.

Mr. Rodecap commented it was "all we can do."

Discuss Budgets

A number of budgets were discussed during the session.

It was agreed the Recreation Department budget would remain at the recommended $45,000, which is about $1,000 less than was spent last year, less a $2,088 capital expenditure item.

A larger budget, Mrs. Roeder said, is not the answer to the department's problems of supervision and administration.

All of the city oficials agreed with her suggestion that steps should be taken to revive playground associations, which once played an important part in the recreation program.

Agreement was reached on a $22,000 appropriation for snow removal, which for the first time will be set up as a separate item. The actual cost in the last fiscal year was $21,634.61.

Social Security costs will be $27,000, Rodecap estimated. Last year the item cost $25,311.70.

May Be Upped

An $18,550 special appropriations budget—already spent—was recommended. Attempts may be made to include funds for repairing the Market Street Bridge after other budget items are known.

Recommended for the stationery and printing budget was $12,450. This includes funds for equipment to mechanize the Finance Department, where, all agreed, payroll work now takes too much time.

Mrs. Roeder suggested that the city should work toward the mechanization task, and all agreed.

Set up for storm sewers, all for maintenance, was $17,350. Nothing is included, Mrs. Roeder pointed out, for new storm sewers or run encasement.

The streets and alleys appropriation was increased $8,500 from the recommended $170,000, since figures on salaries used were net and did not include payments for work done for other departments or utility firms.

The street lighting budget was set at $48,500, and Mr. Light pointed out it does not include funds for lights the city may be asked to install on new streets as they build up.

Another decision was to investigate the possibility of securing a new bulldozer for the city dump, either by purchase or on a rental-purchase plan.

Mr. Light said he would rather see the city pay $5,000 a year toward a new 'dozer than to spend $3,000 a year repairing the old one.

Two Girls Die In Empty Freezer

Suffocate While Playing

Two Bedford area children suffocated yesterday afternoon while playing in an empty freezer at their grandfather's home in Coleraine Township, nine miles south of Bedford.

Susan Kay James, 4, and Debbie Renee James, 6, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John G. James, Coleraine Township, were found dead at 5 p. m. by their grandfather after their absence had been discovered an hour earlier.

Glenn A. James, 72, went into the storage section of his double house and saw the freezer which had been turned off, with the lid shut. Upon opening it, he discovered the two girls and two dead kittens which they had evidently taken with them. Beside the freezer was a lard can which the girls may have used as a step to climb into the freezer.

Pennsylvania State Police at Bedford report that the tragedy may have occurred shortly after 1 p. m., but that any search was delayed because the grandparents believed the children to be at their own home, about 100 yards away, and the girls' mother thought they were with the grandparents. The children were last seen about 1 p. m. by an aunt.

The Bedford County coronor's office and State Police are investigating the deaths.

Besides their parents and paternal grandparents, the girls are survived by six older sisters and an older brother.

Foster Care For Mentally Retarded Aired

County May Be Used For Pilot Program

Allegany and Garrett counties may be used as a pilot study program for the placement of mentally retarded persons in foster homes.

The plan was discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting at the Allegany County Health Department.

Taking part in the discussion were Dr. Benjamin D. White, chief of the division of children's services for the Maryland State Department of Health; Mrs. Barbara Marlowe, chief of social services for the Rosewood State Institution for the Retarded; Dr. Arthur F. Jones, acting deputy state health officer for Garrett County; Mrs. Kathryn Speicher, supervisor of public health nursing service for Garrett County, and Miss Perlina Z. Grassi, supervisor of public health nursing for Allegany County.

Dr. Jones said Dr. White and Mrs. Marlowe told the group Rosewood Institute is overcrowded and the state would like to place several adults and children out in foster homes in the two counties.

Dr. White and Mrs. Marlowe said there are many persons in the institution who they think would respond better in foster homes than in the institution.

They pointed out these foster care "parolees" would be under the care of the nursing services of both counties and representatives of the institution.

Under this pilot study program, not more than six foster homes would be sought. It also was pointed out at the meeting that the entire program would be supported by funds from the State Department of Mental Hygiene.

This pilot program for retarded persons would not be connected in any way with the present welfare foster home program.

Man Ordered Held For Jury For Uttering

Norman H. White Released On Bond

Norman Hiser White, 43, of 745 Maryland Avenue, yesterday was ordered held for action of the October term of the grand jury of Allegany County Circuit Court on a charge of uttering.

White was charged earlier in the week with forging the name on a money order and cashing it at a local tavern, but the charge was changed yesterday to uttering, or the act of passing of forged or fradulent checks or documents.

Magistrate Leslie J. Clark conducted the preliminary hearing and ruled that the state had enough evidence for White to be held for the grand jury. White was released on $500 bond.

State's Attorney James S. Getty presented the state's case and used a number of witnesses to show that White had been with a man named Raymond Lawrence Hull when Hull cashed three fradulent money orders for $92 each on July 18.

It also was brought out at the hearing that Hull used the name of Ray H. Vance when he cashed two checks at two taverns and another at a local service station.

County Investigator William F. Baker said Hull, who is 37 years old and a former resident of Cumberland and Ridgeley, is still being sought in connection with the passing of the bad money orders.

The money orders were drawn on the Nation-Wide Check Corporation in Baltimore. The original money orders were purchased for "$02.00" and the figure 0 in front of the 2 was altered to look like a 9.

White was represented at yesterday's hearing by John Sullivan.

Bed Destroyed In LaVale Fire

LaVale Fire Department answered a call early yesterday at the home of Charles Kahl, Cash Valley Road, where the bed in which he had been sleeping was smouldering.

Two pumper trucks, an equipment truck and 24 men answered the call at 2:40 a. m. and were able to quell the fire before further damage incurred. The cause was smoking in bed.

The bed was destroyed and the upstairs of the house was full of smoke, necessitating the use of air masks and smoke ejector fans by the firemen.

On talking to Kahl, representatives of the fire company learned that he had been awakened by the smoke and phoned in immediately.

His family was away at the time of the incident, visiting in Oakland.

Few Changes Are Made At Budget Meet

Retirees May Get Benefits

The Mayor and Council last night authorized City Comptroller Paul E. Rodecap to work out a trial budget incorporating funds for paying the full cost of hospitalization for all city employes.

Mr. Rodecap was also asked to investigate the cost of providing health and welfare payments for retired or retiring employes of the city.

Another long meeting of Mayor Earl D. Chaney and Commissioners Light, Keegan and Mrs. Roder failed to come up with a better alternative for employes than to pay the full health and welfare costs, which run $14.05 for employes with families. The City now pays the full cost of the employe's share.

It was Water Commissioner G. Ray Light who raised the question of the possibility of paying the hospitalization insurance costs of workers who retire.

Sets $45,000 Limit

He asked Mr. Rodecap if funds could be found and was told that about $45,000 should be the limit. That would allow about $3,000 for the Blue Cross-Blue Shield payments for retired workers.

The cost estimates which will be prepared will include the cost of payments for workers due to retire during this fiscal year and for including workers who have retired during the past 10 years.

Mayor Chaney received no objections when he asked if all were going to go for health and welfare.

Mr. Rodecap commented it was "all we can do."

Discuss Budgets

A number of budgets were discussed during the session.

It was agreed the Recreation Department budget would remain at the recommended $45,000, which is about $1,000 less than was spent last year, less a $2,088 capital expenditure item.

A larger budget, Mrs. Roeder said, is not the answer to the department's problems of supervision and administration.

All of the city oficials agreed with her suggestion that steps should be taken to revive playground associations, which once played an important part in the recreation program.

Agreement was reached on a $22,000 appropriation for snow removal, which for the first time will be set up as a separate item. The actual cost in the last fiscal year was $21,634.61.

Social Security costs will be $27,000, Rodecap estimated. Last year the item cost $25,311.70.

May Be Upped

An $18,550 special appropriations budget—already spent—was recommended. Attempts may be made to include funds for repairing the Market Street Bridge after other budget items are known.

Recommended for the stationery and printing budget was $12,450. This includes funds for equipment to mechanize the Finance Department, where, all agreed, payroll work now takes too much time.

Mrs. Roeder suggested that the city should work toward the mechanization task, and all agreed.

Set up for storm sewers, all for maintenance, was $17,350. Nothing is included, Mrs. Roeder pointed out, for new storm sewers or run encasement.

The streets and alleys appropriation was increased $8,500 from the recommended $170,000, since figures on salaries used were net and did not include payments for work done for other departments or utility firms.

The street lighting budget was set at $48,500, and Mr. Light pointed out it does not include funds for lights the city may be asked to install on new streets as they build up.

Another decision was to investigate the possibility of securing a new bulldozer for the city dump, either by purchase or on a rental-purchase plan.

Mr. Light said he would rather see the city pay $5,000 a year toward a new 'dozer than to spend $3,000 a year repairing the old one.

Young Medic's Star Seen Rising

By RUTH E. THOMPSON

"You'll find this series has the same kind of excitement that made early TV so yeasty," said one of my favorite actresses, Abby Lewis, who was guest-starring on "The Doctors" the day I decided to mosey over and ask why things were changing from a complete story every day to a five-part format.

I also wanted to find out why this NBC Monday through Friday (2:30-3:00) opus is credited with having "nighttime production values on a daytime budget."

"Jerry Layton (the producer) sure knows talent and bless him, he does give pool actors a chance at stardom, a rare thing these days," Abby went on adding, "keep your eye on Richard Roat, believe me he's a comer. Jerry always did know how to pick them, though. Lee Remick, Tony Perkins and Dina Merrill are some of the youngsters who remember his giving breaks to back when he was doing 'Modern Romances'."

Well, already I was getting more than I bargained for . . . the show is a star maker too, or rather its producer is. Before my afternoon was over I also found out who works harder than sandhogs, farmers or business tycoons; it's daytime TV producers with actors running a close second.

"Why did we switch to a five-episode format?" echoed Jerry Layton when I finally caught up with him in the carpeted viewing room where he was glued to a TV screen watching the dress rehearsal via closed circuit. "Well, we realized that 'Eight Hours for Emily' was too good to condense, then other stories of the same value came along and we changed our pace." He sounded like a happy man as he went on. "Now we can get below the surface of the characters and into their motivation in the five-day treatment. Important to us, too, is that now we can develop secondary and tertiary relationships among the regular characters in the background running story."

Miss America Pageant Coverage Slated Sept. 7

"Miss America" is 43 years old . . . the pageant and tradition, that is. And the 1963 Pageant is getting set to roll in Atlantic City on Saturday September 7 with CBS there to televise the goings-on live from 10:00 P. M. to Midnight. The net is celebrating its own seventh anniversary on the job. Emcee Bert Parks, who got on the "Miss America" bandwagon even earlier than CBS, will be reporting for on-stage emcee duties for the ninth consecutive year.

September 7 climaxes four days of competition "for scholarships and national fame" not to mention the title and crown by 55 girls representing the 50 states plus New York City, the District of Columbia, Chicago, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Meanwhile, out in Long Beach, Calif., another group of beauties is warming up for the "International Beauty Spectacular" on August 16. This one (which will have Lorne "Papa Cartwright" Greene as emcee) will be televised by NBC, 10:00 to 11:00 P.M.

Long Beach, which has been the scene of "beauty productions" for 11 years says the August 16 show will have a new look in beauty contests and that "it is not the traditional pageant . . . but is closer in concept to the light opera or musical." In addition to 45 "beauty delegates" there will be 20 ballet dancers, a 24-voice chorale, a 20-piece orchestra and "44 extras."

Award For 'Naked City'

ABC's "Naked City," which was honored with an Emmy for its photography was honored anew when it and Wiley Hance, ABC Manager of Public Affairs, were presented with an American Baptist Award for "well-told stories of the human condition, often showing Christian insights."

3-Hour Insight Of Civil Rights To Be Telecast Sept. 1 By NBC

Time, time, time . . . one way or another a great deal is being allotted to the preparation (and in at least one case, the airing) of topics which include the hitherto unheard-of preemption of a whole evening of its own programs by a network to devote three straight hours to a single subject.

That's what NBC is doing September 2 when at 7:30 p. m. it begins a comprehensive examination of the history of the civil rights movement from the Emancipation Proclamation down to the present day. The network states the program "will draw upon the entire corps of NBC news correspondents and will include foreign correspondents' reports on reaction abroad."

Meanwhile, off in Middle East NBC's Television Religious Program Unit cooperating with the Southern Baptist Convention is following "the New Testament trail of the Apostle Paul's missionary journeys through deserts and mountains, across Turkey and into Greece and Italy." The script will be written by Philip Scharper who prepared the four-part history of the ecumenical councils telecast by "The Catholic Hour" this past season. Air date for "The Apostle Paul" has not yet been announced.

Youth Panel Show Tapped For October

Panels will be coming in younger versions this fall over at CBS as "Do You Know?" gets underway on Saturday, October 12 (12:30-1:00). Two teams, made up of 9 to 12 year-olds from different U. S. grade schools will compete.

Questions will be based on one or two books assigned beforehand. A list, including supplementary reading in addition to the programmed books, is to be distributed to schools throughout the country so child-viewers at home can match their knowledge with the children on-camera.

The advance reception of MGM's movie about a boy and a dolphin, "Flipper," is going over so well in its early showings that NBC has signed up for a television series next year (1964-65) based on it. Leon Benson, who counts the TV series "Seahunt" among his many credits will produce and direct.

And "Destry" is indeed going to ride again, an hour a week, all season long with John Gavin starring. The network says the series will be based partly on the novel itself and partly on the old Marlene Dietrich-James Stewart movie.

Lisa Howard's Interviews To Be Telecast

Legendary Lisa Howard, the brown-eyed blonde who got exclusive interviews with Khrushchev and Castro when they were saying no to everyone else, the Shah of Iran, Cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, and more approachable dignitaries like ex-U. S. President Eisenhower and President Kennedy, is being set for a weekday news report by ABC-TV, 2:55-3:00 p. m.

"News With the Woman's Touch" is the title, and the network states "Miss Howard will not be confined to the studio, but will go out to cover stories when the occasion warrants." (For a girl who hid three hours in a powder room in New York's Russian Consulate, uninvited and unbeknowest, so she could jump out and buttonhole Khrushchev, all-studio would be a might restraining).

Swimming Around The Channels

Julio DiBenedetto's wife, Kim Carlton has gone home to her mother . . . but all is well, Julio's gone with her. After visiting the family in Great Britain, the DiBenedetto's will travel around Europe scouting talent for the Jimmy Dean Show debuting on ABC in September for which he has been named producer under the banner of Bob Banner Associates. Mrs. DiBenedetto, a noted beauty who was chosen Miss England of 1962, will present Julio with an heir in 1964.

One school that's having no districting and integration problems is the fictional Jefferson High School, scene of the new "Mr. Novak" series starring James Franciscus and Dean Jagger. When they chose "fifty typical high school students" they balanced it in accordance with the ratio found in large urban high schools, came up with a group of mixed nationalities.

Hugh Downs has a new kind of award to add to his collection. The NBC "Today" and "Concentration" host has been named "Salesman of the Year" by the National Association of Direct Selling Companies. The citation commends him for always selling his sponsors' products "honestly, persuasively and with good taste."

Ernest Borgnine of "McHale's Navy," has a couple of quips in circulation currently. "A gossip columnist," he says, "is someone who puts who and who together and gets whew!" Then there's his comment that, "In some marriages problems are relative."

Laugh Lines

David Brinkley must be looking on the bright side as he comments that in "television and movies the hero has all the luck. He always finds a parking space right in front of the bank, the post office or the saloon." He forgot to notice that too often the hero is a cop chasing a villain who parked in front of those same places . . . first!

Parking places must have been on Victor "Sing Along With Mitch" Griffin's mind, too, because he says that things haven't gotten too much better for tough hombres . . . in the old days they had notches in their gun handle, now they've got them in the fenders.

Little Irene Ryan has a big thought for the week . . . "Too many men," she says, "do not live by bread alone. They get by on crust."

Youth Panel Show Tapped For October

Panels will be coming in younger versions this fall over at CBS as "Do You Know?" gets underway on Saturday, October 12 (12:30-1:00). Two teams, made up of 9 to 12 year-olds from different U. S. grade schools will compete.

Questions will be based on one or two books assigned beforehand. A list, including supplementary reading in addition to the programmed books, is to be distributed to schools throughout the country so child-viewers at home can match their knowledge with the children on-camera.

The advance reception of MGM's movie about a boy and a dolphin, "Flipper," is going over so well in its early showings that NBC has signed up for a television series next year (1964-65) based on it. Leon Benson, who counts the TV series "Seahunt" among his many credits will produce and direct.

And "Destry" is indeed going to ride again, an hour a week, all season long with John Gavin starring. The network says the series will be based partly on the novel itself and partly on the old Marlene Dietrich-James Stewart movie.

Lisa Howard's Interviews To Be Telecast

Legendary Lisa Howard, the brown-eyed blonde who got exclusive interviews with Khrushchev and Castro when they were saying no to everyone else, the Shah of Iran, Cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, and more approachable dignitaries like ex-U. S. President Eisenhower and President Kennedy, is being set for a weekday news report by ABC-TV, 2:55-3:00 p. m.

"News With the Woman's Touch" is the title, and the network states "Miss Howard will not be confined to the studio, but will go out to cover stories when the occasion warrants." (For a girl who hid three hours in a powder room in New York's Russian Consulate, uninvited and unbeknowest, so she could jump out and buttonhole Khrushchev, all-studio would be a might restraining).

Swimming Around The Channels

Julio DiBenedetto's wife, Kim Carlton has gone home to her mother . . . but all is well, Julio's gone with her. After visiting the family in Great Britain, the DiBenedetto's will travel around Europe scouting talent for the Jimmy Dean Show debuting on ABC in September for which he has been named producer under the banner of Bob Banner Associates. Mrs. DiBenedetto, a noted beauty who was chosen Miss England of 1962, will present Julio with an heir in 1964.

One school that's having no districting and integration problems is the fictional Jefferson High School, scene of the new "Mr. Novak" series starring James Franciscus and Dean Jagger. When they chose "fifty typical high school students" they balanced it in accordance with the ratio found in large urban high schools, came up with a group of mixed nationalities.

Hugh Downs has a new kind of award to add to his collection. The NBC "Today" and "Concentration" host has been named "Salesman of the Year" by the National Association of Direct Selling Companies. The citation commends him for always selling his sponsors' products "honestly, persuasively and with good taste."

Ernest Borgnine of "McHale's Navy," has a couple of quips in circulation currently. "A gossip columnist," he says, "is someone who puts who and who together and gets whew!" Then there's his comment that, "In some marriages problems are relative."

Scientific Magazine Cooperates In Program

"The Scientific American" magazine is working in cooperation with CBS "Chronicle" staff readying a program examining some of the fundamental scientific break-throughs made since the end of World War II "and their increasing effect on our lives."

The series, which will consist of 20 half hours "devoted to examining mankind's ideas, culture and institutions." Charles Collingwood will, in the network's words, "have a central and continuing role in each of the programs." The series will be presented Wednesday evenings, commencing October 2.

Laugh Lines

David Brinkley must be looking on the bright side as he comments that in "television and movies the hero has all the luck. He always finds a parking space right in front of the bank, the post office or the saloon." He forgot to notice that too often the hero is a cop chasing a villain who parked in front of those same places . . . first!

Parking places must have been on Victor "Sing Along With Mitch" Griffin's mind, too, because he says that things haven't gotten too much better for tough hombres . . . in the old days they had notches in their gun handle, now they've got them in the fenders.

Little Irene Ryan has a big thought for the week . . . "Too many men," she says, "do not live by bread alone. They get by on crust."
